Sometimes sad and sometimes gay,
Thus the news comes day by day;
Sometimes thrilling, sometimes flat,
Not less true to life for that.

Gunmen—bandits! Same old tale—
Crime wave news is growing stale;
Negro robbers loot a store—
Time our cops were getting sore!
When a crook now wants some pelf,
All he does is help himself,
Opens credit with a gun,
While he hums "Ain't we got fun!"

It's hard to tell now what to think—
The Yellow peril's turning pink!
And, fed from Moscow, every Chin
Would put the whole world on the blink.

It's almost as hard for the war correspondents to figure out what's going on in China as it is for the coroner to figure out what's going on in Chinatown.

"Which I wish to remark—
And my language is plain—
That for ways that are dark
And for tricks that are vain,
The heathen Chinese is peculiar."

Nats rally, beat the Cards—
Come to our city, pards!

Hinckley makes us blush—
Is Wayne Wheeler's big fund
"slush."

Wicked Mr. Hinckley, hush!

Maj. Segrave, of England, pulls off a stunt at Daytona Beach worth telephoning home about, but isn't the radio pretty slow for a man who can make 207 miles an hour?

Maryland's dry tail continues to wag Ritchie's Chesapeake bay dog.

Pinedo arrives at New Orleans amid scenes of unprecedented welcome—even the Mississippi bursts her banks to get a good view of him.

Or, maybe, it was old Hernandez De Soto, stirring in his grave in the river-bed that made the levee give away.

The university women are in town today, but we observe that elephant breath and hippopotamus sneeze are more stylish shades than the old-fashioned bluestockings.

How the British happened to break a world's record is explained by the fact that Maj. Segrave is the kind of an Englishman smart enough to have picked out a town like Baltimore for a birthplace.

The time has passed when the decision as to whether Christian missionaries are to remain in China rests with their respective boards. A country that wins its liberties on a battlefield learns in time to enact its own exclusion laws.

President Coolidge appoints the American delegates to the economic conference of the League of Nations.
No near-sighted man could tell that we aren't in it.

The African Hottentots who conclude from watching the astronomers on Mount Brukkaros that the Americans control the heavens, haven't anything in the way of credulity on our new radio commission.

One gathers from the current dispatches from the Lake Michigan front that the people of Chicago are almost as ready for self-government as those of China.

Happily, however, the widespread distress following in the wake of the Senate filibuster, which made Uncle Sam unable to meet many of his financial obligations, is not interfering in the least with Dave Reed's
European pleasure trip.

Senator Borah deals the Al Smith presidential boom a death blow—says that if nominated the Governor will declare for the enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment.

The automobile has so far outstripped the telephone in this country that it's hard to get a call through for the ambulance.

When a couple of bandits can rob
a store two blocks from the White House in broad daylight, President Coolidge naturally concludes it's high time to call a crime conference.

Iowa-Thomas Circle Citizens Association would like a little light thrown on the dark-corner girl.

Sapiro ought to have taken his case to the traffic court—he was run over by a Ford.

The only crime conference that seems to be getting any results is the one the bandits held just before the robbery.

John D. presents Maj. Segrave, with four handsome silver trophies, beautifully designed.

We fear that this big drop in ice reported today will be of no interest in refrigerator circles.

England hangs a criminal 37 days after the crime. They're so busy over there enforcing the law that they haven't time to bother with any conferences.

SAPIRO JURY TOLD STORY OF ALLEGED DAMAGE BY FORD

Falling Off in Income and Loss of Farmer Busi- ness Claimed.

PLAINTIFF ORDERED TO PRODUCE RECORDS

Clash Between Counsel Brings Sharp Rebuke From the Bench.

Detroit, March 29 (By the Associated Press).—Calmly, almost casually, with no trace of anger or bitterness in his voice, Aaron Sapiro today told a Federal jury his story of alleged libels by Henry Ford and the automobile manufacturer's weekly, the Dearborn Independent, for which he seeks $1,000,000.

Three sentences covered it. One revealed a falling off in net income since the Independent published a series of anti-Jewish articles, with which Sapiro later was connected. The other two stated that since the alleged libelous publications no farmers had called upon Sapiro to form them into a co-operative agency and that only three established cooperatives had sought his services or advice.

Sapiro's success required more than a day for telling from the witness stand—a meager childhood existence, life in an orphanage, brilliancy in studies and a quick rise in professional life.

Argument Over Figures.

Such things as his plan for co-operatives being adopted entirely or in part in 40 States, his appearance before the Supreme Court of the United States and the high courts of 15 States, and his addressing the legislatures of six Commonwealths were touched upon as incidents.

Most of the day was devoted, however, to argument over the legality of admitting Sapiro's figures of income as an evidence of damage done by the Dearborn Independent articles.

Ford's counsel maintained that since much of the income was derived from States in which Sapiro was not legally qualified to practice, it could not be taken into account when casting the sums of damage. Judge Fred M. Raymond held with Sapiro's counsel, William Henry Gallagher, who contended that reciprocal rights accorded by the various States permitted it.

It was 1916 before Sapiro began to realize upon his extensive legal education, he testified. It was then that he began to establish himself as an expert in the legal end of the organization of farmers' cooperatives. He listed an income of "approximately $10,000," books for that year and the next are missing without hope of being found, Sapiro testified. He listed an income of "approximately $16,000" in 1917.

Income for Nine Years.

For the next nine years he listed these annual incomes: $15,839.55, $17,276.14, $30,237.29, $46,301.20, $61,331.31, $59,369.51, $58,068.45, $42,357.52 and $22,939.55.

The defense demanded the records for the nine-year figures and Sapiro telephoned to San Francisco to have some

3 PINNED UNDER AUTO BY PLUNGE OVER BANK

Retired Officer Loses Control Attempting to Aid Baby to Front Seat.

Capt. Chester Wells, U. S. N., retired, his 2-year-old daughter, Christine, and a nurse, Miss Elizabeth McQuade, narrowly escaped death yesterday when an automobile driven by Capt. Wells left the road near Kensington, Md., and striking a tree, rolled down an embankment, pinning the occupants beneath it.

Capt. Wells, who lives in Chevy Chase, Md., was taking his daughter for an airing when the accident occurred. Christine, on the rear seat with the nurse, wanted to ride beside her father. Turning to assist her, he lost control of the car. The child was cut severely on the face and head, 23 stitches being required to close cuts. She was taken to Walter Reed hospital after the three had been taken from under the automobile by J. MacIntyre, rural delivery postman. Capt. Wells received a sprained hand and legs.

Blind Man, 63, Wins Suit Brought by Wife

Chicago, March 29 (By A. P.).—A 63-year-old blind man today was victor in a fight against his wife's suit for divorce. A ruling based on testimony of the blind man, John H. Andrews, retired farmer, denied the petition of his wife, Mrs. Phoebe Andrews, alleging cruelty.

Mrs. Andrews, denying cruelty and supported in his contention by three married daughters, testified that he had found his wife with another man, a roamer, and through his delicate sense of touch identified the man as Wesley Bradford, his wife's chief witness.

Mr. Andrews opposed the divorce suit because of his religious belief.

WHEELER HELD TO PAY HOUSE COMMITTEE BILLS

G. C. Hinckley Charges Group Issues Dry League's Propaganda.

MAKES REPLY TO HUDSON

(By the Associated Press.)

A charge that Wayne B. Wheeler has been paying the expenses of a House committee to enable it to issue propaganda for the benefit of the Antislavery league was made last night by G. C. Hinckley, national secretary of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

The charge was made in a formal statement, prompted by the announcement Monday by Representative Hudson (Republican), Michigan, that he favored a congressional investigation of the association and its financing. Hudson is chairman of the alcoholic liquor traffic committee.

"It has just been disclosed," said Mr. Hinckley, "that Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Antislavery league, has been paying the expenses of the committee on alcoholic liquor traffic, of which Mr. Hudson is the chief factotum, to enable it to issue propaganda for the benefit of the league. This is probably the first time in history of the government that any private organization was able to own a committee of Congress for propaganda purposes."

Asserting that "all the money collected by the league has been used for the single purpose of controlling politics, either directly or indirectly," Mr. Hinckley continued:

"In addition to the money collected it has used the government as its propaganda agent to get its partisan literature into the hands of the people, and it has even bulldozed Congress into voting large appropriations for sending its representatives to Europe on propaganda junkets and then had the reports of its meetings printed and distributed at the expense of the government."

The Antislavery league, Mr. Hinckley said, "never has accounted to the public."

Earl Carroll Ordered To Surrender Monday

New York, March 29 (By A. P.).—Earl Carroll, theatrical producer, today was ordered to surrender Monday to begin the sentence of a year and a day in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., imposed as a result of his famous "bath tub" party.

Notices were sent to Carroll's attorneys by Alexander Gilchrist, clerk of the United States district court, who last week received the mandate of the United States Supreme Court refusing to review Carroll's case. The producer has been at liberty under $5,000 bail.

Lazaro Sinking; Result of Relapse

Representative Ladislav Lazaro, of Louisiana, who has been ill in Garfield hospital since March 9, yesterday suffered a relapse. His condition was described by hospital officers as critical and members of his family spent yesterday in the hospital at his bedside.

Representative Lazaro went to the hospital for an operation following which he seemed on the road to recovery until the beginning of a relapse late Monday night. He was born in Louisiana, June 5, 1879, and has been a member of the Sixty-third and succeeding Congresses, having been re-elected to the Seventieth Congress, which will meet for the first time in December.

Herbert C. Pell was chairman of the Democratic State committee of New York from 1921 to 1925, and served one term in Congress. The family is socially prominent in New York. Herbert C. Pell, Sr., was the founder of Tussock Park and lived there until his death several years ago.

ENGLISHMAN DRIVES MYSTERY RACE CAR 207 MILES AN HOUR

Maj. Segrave's Giant Auto Dashes Along Beach to Set Record.

BLIND AT HIGH POINT OF SPEED, HE SAYS

Believes That He Could Have Gone Faster; Face Is Blistered by Wind.

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 29 (By A. P.).—England, shorn of its golfing and other titles by invading Americans, tonight laid claim to one title about which there could be no doubt—the world's automobile speed record.

Invading American shores, Maj. H. O. D. Segrave, intrepid British racing driver, today sent his flaming red "mystery number" automobile over the sands of the beach here at an average of 203,793 miles an hour in two 1-mile speed trials. Malcolm Campbell's 173.2-mile-an-hour record, established in England, and Tommy Milton's American mark of 156.04, were dwarfed by the giant twin twelve-cylinder motor car.

His face blistered by wind and his wrists sore from holding the huge car on the beach, the Englishman's thoughts turned to home. Surrendering his mount to a companion, Maj. Segrave walked with friends at the Daily News in London by radio phone. He told them of his achievement and announced that he would be home soon. The most understood that his wife and father listened in on the conversation.

Satisfied, "now we will pack up and go home," he told companions.

7,000 Watch Test.

A hot midmorning sun beat down on the white sand as Maj. Segrave jockeyed his car into position down a lane lined by about 7,000 persons. In the face of a quivering wind he began the portward trip. For 4 miles he battled the wind as his mount gathered speed for the drive over the mile measured course. In 17.94 seconds he had traversed the mile, an average of 200,688 miles an hour.

With the wind to his back he turned about for the final trial. The timing devices reset, he plunged forward on his roaring return. His white, strained face could be seen as the car careened past the judges' stand, caught in the wind and swerved, sweeping down course flags and righted itself to go on to the finish.

The whirling wheels had left only a faint trace in the hard-packed sand, but on the records of the American Automobile association they placed an indelible mark. The southbound mile was made in 17.39 seconds, an average of 207,015 miles an hour.

Maj. Segrave came to America to reclaim for England some of the glory lost in the realm of sports and made good by carrying out his threat to travel 200 miles or more an hour.

Silent on Sensations.

So busy was Maj. Segrave in giving the machine attention after the race that he had not time for comment on

MEXICAN OFFICERS FAIL TO FREE WILKINS

Plight of American Held by Bandits Regarded as Very Dangerous.

(By the Associated Press.)

Unsuccessful efforts of Mexican army officials at Guadalajara to rescue Edgar Morris Wilkins, an American, kidnapped with his 10-year-old son on Sunday by bandits and held for 40,000 pesos ransom, were reported to the State Department yesterday by Consul D. G. Dwyre.

Dwyre said he considered the predicament of Wilkins "very dangerous," although the boy had been released and sent into the city with a note demanding ransom. The kidnapping occurred on the outskirts of the city.

An attempt at rescue was made Monday by the Mexican military authorities and a fight with the bandits occurred. The Mexican commander informed Consul Dwyre that he would renew the pursuit.

NEW ORLEANS GREET PINEDO, ITALIAN FLIER

Aviator Makes Hop From Havana, Cuba, in 6 Hours and 15 Minutes.

SHAVES ON WAY ACROSS

New Orleans, March 29 (By A. P.).—A modern discoverer piloted his Santa Maria safely into port here today to receive a greeting from fellow countrymen instead of Indians and to find the comforts of civilization instead of the hardships of a new world.

Commander Francesco de Pinedo and his companions rested tonight after their trip from Havana, and the Italian flier's ship, the Santa Maria, named after the flier's of his predecessor, Columbus, was being put in readiness for the next hop of his four-continent trip. The flier will remain here until Thursday or Friday.

A gentle tail wind aided de Pinedo throughout his flight from Havana, he said, and his monoplane purred off the 700-odd miles in six hours and fifteen minutes, contrasted to the weeks of sailing, dependent upon the vagaries of shifting winds, that would have been required by the original Santa Maria.

De Pinedo was shaving when he sighted New Orleans. His companions, Capt. Carlo del Prete, assistant pilot, and Vitale Zaccchetti, kept the plane on its course which the commander prepared for the arrival here.

"I wanted to look presentable upon landing," he said. "We left Havana too early this morning to fix up much. We were 6 hours and 15 minutes on the way, leaving Havana at 7:15 a. m. and getting here at 1:30 by our watches, which we had not changed in crossing into your time zone."

Villa Grove, Ill., March 29 (By A. P.).—Judge William B. Reeves saved his own life here today when he grappled in his courtroom with Samuel L. Anderson, farmer of near Decatur, who attempted to shoot him.

Anderson, enraged when the judge refused to set aside a mortgage so he could sell his farm, leaped from his chair and fired at Judge Reeves, the bullet barely missing the latter. Judge Reeves grappled with Anderson, who fired again at close range. Roy Johnson, an insurance agent, intervened and separated the men.

DAYLIGHT BANDITS LOOT STORE AFTER TRUSSING UP CLERKS

Two Men Gagged With Socks and Then Bound With Neckties.

ROBBERS ESCAPE WITH $170 IN CASH

Holdup Staged at 6 o'Clock at Fourteenth Street and New York Avenue.

Two armed colored bandits walked into the Ariel shirt shop, at 1402 New York avenue northwest, about 6 o'clock last evening, stuffed socks into the mouths of two clerks, lashed their wrists and feet with neckties, and then escaped with $170, two watches and some merchandise. Meantime scores of persons streamed past the shop.

As they were leaving, one of the robbers, in a boastful tone of voice, said to his victims:

"Sorry there wasn't a little gun play. A few years in jail means nothing to me."

The two negroes then calmly called a nearby taxicab and asked to be driven to Twelfth and U streets northwest. Police last night predicted an early arrest of the bandits.

P. J. Jordan, a traffic policeman, was on duty at Fourteenth street and New York avenue northwest, less than 100 feet away from the scene of the holdup and robbery, but so well was the robbery planned and so expeditiously did the bandits carry out their purpose Jordan and the crowds who passed the store were unaware of the plight of the victims inside.

When the bandits entered the store only the two clerks were present. They were Talbot Purvis, 21 years old, of 513 Buchanan street northwest, and Edward Elkins, 40 years old, of 1901 K street northwest.

Cash Register Looted.

One of the men asked to see some shirts and Purvis went to the rear of the store. While he was there one of the robbers drew a revolver and pointed it at Elkins and then "fanned" it so as to cover Purvis. Meanwhile, the other robber walked to the front of the store, unlocked the door and pulled down the shades.

Then, while one robber covered the clerks, the other went to the cash register and rifled it of about $90. After that he took the watches and money from the two clerks, $30 from Elkins and $40 from Purvis.

The same robber then went to a drawer and drew out two pairs of socks. One pair he stuffed into the mouth of Purvis and the other pair he jammed into the mouth of Elkins. Then he tied a necktie around each man's head so as to keep the gag in place.

Clerks Lashed to Table.

The two clerks then were made to lie down, while one of the robbers bound their wrists together and lashed their legs to a table.

Twenty minutes later Purvis managed to wriggle out of his bonds and notify the police.

A description of the colored men, both of whom were youthful looking, was flashed to all police precincts immediately.

Newspaper Bombed After Vice Crusade

Chicago, March 29 (By A. P.).—A bomb of the black powder variety today damaged the rear of the building occupied by the Calumet Index, a suburban newspaper owned by Carl Morgan.

Morgan, who said he had been conducting an anti-vice crusade, reported he recently received a threat.

SHOOTS 2 FOREMEN; IS SLAIN BY POLICE

Chicago Man Kills Bosses He Blamed for Discharge; Stands Off Siege.

Chicago, March 29.—Surrounded in a house tonight after he had shot and killed two construction foremen he blamed for discharging him, Joseph Clements stood off a police siege for more than an hour.

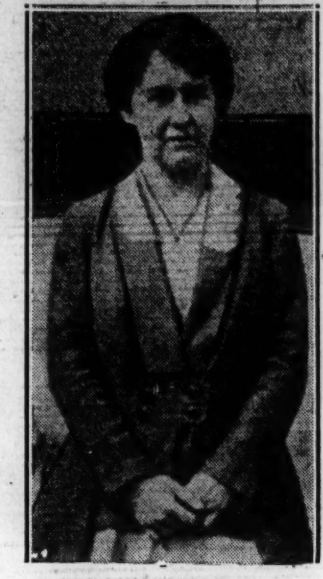

Then, firing a revolver at the beleaguered men, he made a dash for liberty and was shot and killed by the fusillade from the police.

Both the men killed by Clements were employed by the Reliable Construction Co. The victims of Clements' bullets were John Palumbo, 31 years old, and Jack Pietri, 35 years old.

Clements found Palumbo in front of his home and upbraided him for his discharge. "I've got four children," he said. "They're hungry. I want a job." Palumbo told him times were slack. "I'm tired of that talk," Clements shouted.

With that he fired three bullets into the body of the foreman. He ran directly to the home of Pietri. The latter was in the kitchen of his home, talking to his wife. Without warning Clements fired a single shot and a bullet crashed into the head of Pietri.

DRY AFFIDAVITS AGAINST NIGHT CLUBS OBTAINED

Agents Used in Le Paradis Case Report Evidence Involving Others.

7 PLACES CITED AS LAX

The fate which befell Le Paradis cafe a week ago, when District Attorney Peyton Gordon obtained a restraining order designed to compel the operators and patrons of the cafe to observe the prohibition law, soon may descend on other prominent hotels and night clubs.

A force, composed of prohibition agents, policemen and policemen, who made affidavits in the Le Paradis case, it was learned last night, have submitted affidavits against several other hotels and clubs. The affidavits allege liquor is consumed in the clubs and hotels with the assistance of waiters and knowledge of the operators.

Lieut. Mina Van Winkle, commander of the policewomen's bureau, assigned four policewomen to work with prohibition agents and policemen when it was suggested the plan be tried out in this city by the prohibition enforcement bureau. Mrs. Van Winkle said she obtained permission of Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, chief of police, before detailing the policewomen. Detective A. D. Mansfield, also was assigned to the force.

They worked with Prohibition Agents Harry N. Dougherty, Daniel P. Lyons and Lindsay S. Scott. A tour of Capital night clubs was made several weeks ago, and more than once the "under cover" squad visited a place twice or more.

TONG WAR MURDER VICTIM TO BE GIVEN CHRISTIAN FUNERAL

Threatened Court Battle Is Avoided When Chinese Association
Withdraws Claims.

SLAIN MAN CONVERTED
ABOUT 15 YEARS AGO

Stolid Orientals at Inquest Fail to Reveal Clue as to Killer.

Lem Chong, who fell under a fusillade from a Chinese killer's revolver Friday, will be given a Christian burial, it was announced yesterday at the morgue. The announcement came after leaders of the two tongs which claimed the body—the Hip Sing tong and the On Leong tong—had agreed to withdraw their claims and turn the body over to the Calvary Baptist church. Thus, a threatened court battle was avoided.

It was discovered that Lem Chong had become a convert about fifteen years ago and had attended Sunday school at the Calvary Baptist church, known as the "President's church" when Warren G. Harding was in office.

Miss Louise Taylor was Chong's teacher in those days, and it was she who appealed to the tong leaders to permit a Christian burial for him.

After the inquest into Chong's death yesterday—an inquest which developed nothing—Lew Toy, "boss man" of the Hip Sing tong, and George Wen, second "boss man" of the On Leong tong, told Attorney James O'Shea that they would accede to Miss Taylor's wishes.

Both, however, insisted on sharing in the expense of the funeral, and this will be permitted.

No Light on Murder.

When the Chinese gunman walked into the Canton Pagoda restaurant Friday and sent three bullets into Lem Chong, there were two other Chinese present. One of them was within a few feet of where Chong fell dead. Yesterday these two—Moy Hong, a cook, and Moy Soon, a waiter—were called before a coroner's jury at the morgue to tell what they knew about the crime. When they had concluded, the spectators in the morgue began to wonder if there really had been a murder.

Moy Hong, an elderly Oriental with protruding teeth and melancholy eyes, babbling out the following: "I sit at table in kitchen. Write bill of fare. I hear big noise."

But he didn't know the "big noise" meant his friend, Lem Chong, was being murdered. In fact, he didn't even look up from the bill of fare he was working on.

Moy Soon, a younger Chinese with a habit of staring at the ceiling, followed Moy Hong on the stand. He was reading a newspaper when the murder was committed, he said, and like Hong, failed to look up.

He did go so far as to say that he heard a "lot of confusion" and that something "fashed" out of the door. But that was all.

George Lee, a smart-looking Chinese youth, who two years ago married Mildred Wen, the belle of Chinatown, acted as interpreter for Moy Soon.

Coroner J. Ramsey Nevitt, apparently exasperated with the Chinese, brought the inquest to a close before half the witnesses had been heard, and a few minutes later the jury found that Lem Chong had been murdered by "a person unknown."

Lecturer Comes Here To Address Post Boys

Dan McCowan, of Boston, lecturer of the bureau of commercial economics of Washington, came all the way from Syracuse, N. Y., last night to entertain 225 Washington Post carriers at their weekly entertainment in the Washington Post Carriers' hall, Third street and Indiana avenue northwest. Mr. McCowan left immediately after his talk for Niagara Falls, N. Y., where he will lecture to-night.

Views of wild animal life, of mountains and streams and farm lands of Canada and the far North were shown by colored lantern slides, which were explained by Mr. McCowan. These were followed by a two-reel moving picture. More than a score of the carriers were accompanied by their fathers. Refreshments followed the entertainment.

Citizens Body Wants To Discourage Petters

Brilliant lights to illuminate the shady nooks in Iowa circle park and to discourage petting parties during the summer were requested of the District government by the Iowa-Thomas Circle Citizens association last night at a meeting in Northminster church, Eleventh street and Rhode Island avenue northwest.

The proposed amendment of Traffic Director M. O. Eldridge to the traffic code, which would permit the passing of one automobile by another on the right-hand side, was approved. A heated debate preceded the vote, in which M. M. Fulton, secretary of the body, opposed the amendment, and Dr. F. T. Evans spoke in its favor.

Tall Cedars Hold March Initiation

His warning was sufficient for the heavily packed Democratic house, however.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., March 29.—The House of delegates tonight passed and sent to the senate a bill reorganizing the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, about which there has been so much controversy. A delegation of citizens from the suburban counties is to appear before a senate committee tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock on the bill.

The senate passed on second reading bills already passed by the house authorizing more than $1,000,000 for county police stations at Silver Spring and Bethesda; $800,000 for road improvements; $250,000 for improvements or rebuilding of the courthouse at Rockville.

Similar action was also taken on a bill to abolish the fee system in Montgomery county and pay a sheriff a regular salary of $3,000 a year. This bill gives it the sense of the general assembly that the sheriff should be paid his time to his civil duties and that the county police should be responsible for the enforcement of criminal laws.

Reorganizing the county police force from 6 to 20 and providing for increased salaries; authorizing the county commissioners to employ two members of the county police force; authorizing a bond issue of $200,000 for emergency purposes; directing the county police to make a monthly census of dogs and kill all of the unlicensed; providing for the annexation of a portion of the Tenth election district to the Seventh; authorizing the commissioners to employ two members of the bar to codify Montgomery county laws and report to the next session of the assembly.

Requiring that the police court meet at 10 o'clock in the morning at least four days a week; and authorizing a tax levy of 15 cents in Montgomery County and 12 cents in Bethesda for the maintenance of paid fire department and calling for an election of two additional county commissioners on November 3, 1930. This latter bill is in connection with the plan to make the suburban portion of the county a legislative district.

Southeast Citizens Indorse Airport Bill

Indorsement of the Gasque bill for an airport for the District was given by the Southeast Citizens' association in the Southeast library last night. The association recommended the airport be located at Buzzard Point on the river. Action followed an address by Maj. Clayton Emig urging the importance of an airport as a part of the development of the Capital.

District officials were criticized as having neglected the Southeast section by not having the airport located in that section. The Southeast section, it was declared, was entitled to the new style electric lights which have been installed in Northwest.

Announcement of his withdrawal as a candidate for reelection to the Citizens Advisory council was made yesterday by Robert R. Faulkner in a letter to Lewis S. Trundle, president of the Michigan Park Citizens association, which nominated him for the council.

Withdrawal of Mr. Faulkner leaves sixteen candidates for the eight seats to be filled. The nomination by the Michigan Park association, Mr. Faulkner had, had been made despite his announcement that he would not be a candidate, and he retracted Mr. Trundle to withdraw his name before balloting is begun.

TAKOMA PARK PAVING PROGRAM IS RATIFIED

$150,000 for Streets to Be Borne by Property Owners and Town Bonds.

THREE VOICE OPPOSITION

Following a public hearing in the Takoma Park Presbyterian church, in the course of which only three of approximately 350 persons who attended opposed its program, the town council of Takoma Park, Md., last night voted to put through its $150,000 street improvement program.

Cost of the paving of five and a half miles of town streets will be borne by abutting property owners and the town, the town paying one-third, and property owners on either side of the streets which are paved in five paying a third. The town's share of the cost is to be raised through the issuance of $50,000 in certificates of indebtedness maturing in five years.

Opponents of the program, sponsored by Mayor Ben G. Davis, who presided at the hearing and council meeting last night, sought to defeat it on the ground that the issuance of the certificates of indebtedness was not authorized. Special assessments will be levied on property owners for their share of the costs and these assessments will fall due in full in 90 days, with property owners permitted to distribute their payments in five annual installments, although deferred installments will bear 6 per cent interest.

Details of the program will be completed at a meeting of the council which has been called for Monday night and immediately thereafter it is planned to ask for public bids for construction of the new paving.

ATTACK HELD SOVIET RELIEF BY KERENSKY

Would Serve to Solidify the Russian People, He Tells Overseas Writers.

Only an attack from outside will serve to solidify the Russian people and bring about their support for the tottering communist regime, said members of the Overseas Writers league in the Hamilton hotel yesterday.

Kerensky referred to the differences between Roumania and Russia over Bessarabia and its possible resulting conflict as containing potentialities which might upset his estimate that the communist regime will collapse shortly. He refused, however, to predict the time of the fall closer than from six months to three years.

Recognition by the United States neither will hinder nor aid the new movement, he declared. He predicted a new era and the support of a government with which the United States could cooperate. He spoke through an interpreter.

Fusillade Wrecks Hit-and-Run Auto

A "hit-and-run" automobile escaped amid a fusillade of shots from the revolver of Policeman Wayland Whittemore, of the Second precinct, after it struck and knocked down Archie Thomas, colored, 32 years old, 1318 Twenty-eighth street northwest, at Seventh and M streets northwest early this morning.

Thomas was treated at Freedman's hospital for severe lacerations on the head and body. His condition is believed to be not serious. The "hit-and-run" automobile was found a short time after the accident at Tenth and M streets northwest with a bullet hole in the gasoline tank. Policeman Whittemore said he believed one of his bullets struck an occupant of the automobile. All of the occupants were colored, he said.

DRY FORCE AFFIDAVITS ACCUSE NIGHT CLUBS

While they dined, danced and enjoyed themselves, they also observed. Then their affidavits were sworn out after they went to Maj. Gordon, one to the prohibition office, one to Maj. Hesse and one to Lieut. Van Winkle.

Great care was exercised when the affidavits were being prepared. Each member of the force was made to write his or her report alone, without assistance from other members.

Lieut. Van Winkle said the four policemen submitted five reports and were doubtful as to two places visited. It is understood, however, that the prohibition agents made seven or eight reports.

Maj. Gordon last night would neither confirm nor deny a report that he was in possession of eight sets of affidavits similar to the ones upon which the temporary restraining order against the Le Paradis was obtained a week ago, saying it would be "improper."

CROWE IS ACCUSED BY POLITICAL FOES; INQUIRY PROMISED

Grand Jury Will Take Up the Charges of Misusing His Office in Campaign.

ONLY WANTS A HEARING, SAYS PROSECUTOR

Effort Made to Clip the Vote of Thompson Seen in Suspect Notices.

Chicago, Ill., March 29 (By A. P.).—Chicago Democracy, rallying behind Mayor William E. Dever in one of the city's noisiest and most bizarre election campaigns, struck out twice today at the Republican organization and its standard bearer, William Hale Thompson.

One blow was aimed at Robert E. Crowe, State's attorney and political "pal" of Thompson. He is charged by the city clerk committee of the Democratic party with illegal use of his office in furthering the Thompson candidacy.

The other Democratic move sought through the filing of thousands of "suspect notices," to clip Republican strength in the so-called Thompson wards in the negro section of the South Side.

Judge William J. Lindsay, chief justice of the criminal court, indicated he would grant the petition for a special grand jury and a special State's attorney to investigate the activities of State's Attorney Crowe and the alleged use of his office in behalf of Thompson.

"The stench regarding election frauds," Judge Lindsay said, "is great enough in the nostrils of the public so that if there is any legal way of preventing the manipulation of the coming election, it should be done."

Judge Lindsay held the matter over until tomorrow to give Mr. Crowe an opportunity to make answer to the petition which charges him with using and planning to use gunmen and hoodlums to aid Thompson. The court also instructed the attorneys to prepare an order for the compelling of a special grand jury and the appointment of a special State's attorney.

Crowe charged the petition was an attempt by the Democrats to steal the election. He demanded a hearing in open court and challenged his accusers to produce evidence.

"All I want," the State's attorney said, "before you take away my reputation, the reputation of my family and that of my associates, is that I have a hearing in court. If these charges are true, I ought to be whipped out of this court; and if they are not, the men who had the gall to bring them should be driven out."

Crowe said that if there is fraud in the election, "it will have been permitted by the petitioners. Every man in the office of the board of election commissioners is an adherent of the Democratic party."

Thompson Makes Protest.

Thompson himself appeared at the offices of the election commission during the day and protested against the large filing of suspect notices. He said he had heard more than 30,000 were to be filed. He was told by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki that any attempt to use the suspect notice privilege for the unfair advantage of either party would be discouraged.

Another political angle was seen in the preliminary notice of a suit for slander, in which damages of $100,000 were claimed by the State's attorney against the chief of police, against Adelbert H. Roberts, negro State senator. The suit is based on statements alleged to have been made by Senator Roberts at a recent senate committee hearing in which he charged Chief Collins with having received graft in large amounts from resort keepers in Chicago's "black belt."

McLAUGHLIN, POLICE COMMISSIONER, QUILTS

New York Official Becomes Postal Telegraph Co. Vice President.

New York, March 29 (By A. P.).—George V. McLaughlin, police commissioner, resigned today effective May 1, when he will become executive vice president of the Postal Telegraph Co.

The commissioner, in a letter to Mayor Walker, said that he had made his decision to leave the department only after he was convinced that the crime situation, so far as it depends upon the police department, had been brought around "to a satisfactory condition."

The commissioner has been at odds with some Tammany Hall district leaders over police raids on Democratic clubs where, it was alleged, professional gamblers held forth. Notwithstanding the cheerful tone of the commissioner's letter to the mayor, the men who can in daily contact with him at police headquarters said that he had been very much discouraged lately, giving to the attitude of certain politicians. The gambling situation had also caused him annoyance, it was said.

Certain politicians who had tried to block the commissioner's efforts to have crime suppression laws passed had also aroused the commissioner's ire, it was reported.

LUNACY WARRANT ISSUED FOR $25,000 PLAINTIFF

Counsel for Blackton, Defendant in Horship Suit, Charges Delusions.

$500 VERDICT AWARDED

Los Angeles, March 29 (By A. P.).—A verdict awarding damages of $500 to Lieut. Gerard de Merveaux was returned by a jury in superior court here late tonight in the $25,000 suit brought by the fencing instructor against J. Stuart Blackton, film director, for an alleged horshiping received two years ago in Blackton's home.

The closing hours of the trial were overshadowed by the issuance of a warrant for the arrest of the Hollywood fencing master on charges of insanity and being a dangerous person.

The warrant, obtained from the county lunacy commission, upon which superior Judge Robert Scott signed the warrant for de Merveaux's arrest. The sheriff's office announced that it would be served upon the returning of a verdict, favorable or unfavorable to de Merveaux.

The warrant is based on charges that de Merveaux is subject to the delusion that he is being persecuted and ruined financially; that he has threatened to kill Blackton's two daughters; that he has threatened the life of the complaining attorney, Kidder, and that he is a person dangerous to be at large. The warrant orders that de Merveaux be placed under observation in a psychiatric ward.

Attorneys for both principals in the trial made full use of the two hours allotted each for their closing argument. During the morning the plaintiff's counsel, in fiery outbursts of oratory, called the jury's close attention to alleged contradictions and discrepancies in the testimony of defense witnesses, upheld the social and professional value of the reputation gained through honors in aviation in the world war by the French fencer, and demanded that the jury see the merits of the case as necessitating an award of damages to de Merveaux.

Smith Would Uphold Dry Law, Says Borah

Would Make People Believe in H. He Adds; Defies a G. O. P. Regular.

Utica, N. Y., March 29 (By A. P.).—Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York if nominated for President, will not only declare for the eighth amendment and its enforcement, but will make the people believe in it. United States Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, predicted in an address here tonight.

The chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, speaking before the Utica Republican club, predicted also that the platform to be adopted by the Republican national party will declare for enforcement.

Putting aside an outlined speech on foreign relations, in view of opposition to the appearance of an "irregular" before the Republican club, expressed by Bradford H. Devine, Utica manufacturer and member of the organization, Senator Borah explained his opinion of a "regular Republican," pleaded for friendship with all nations, advocated arbitration on the Mexican problem and recognition of Russia.

"I want to define a regular," the senator said. "The regular in Washington is the gentleman who generally votes against the President on important measures."

France's Fairest Woman Sent to Ellis Island

New York, March 29.—Good looks and money don't mean much to Uncle Sam. Pretty 18-year-old Jacqueline Schally, French movie actress, learned that to her sorrow today, shortly after the French liner Suffren docked here.

She smiled a dimpled smile and opened a well-filled purse, but, alas, she was sent to Ellis Island. She was hazy—too hazy, the inspectors thought—about her ultimate destination and the probable length of her stay.

"Maybe Hollywood for a few months, then a few months somewhere else," said Jacqueline, who has been labeled the "most beautiful woman of France."

"Maybe Ellis Island first, anyhow. Later Hollywood, perhaps," smiled back the inspector. And Ellis Island it was, although she had been a cabin passenger.

Striking Students Battle Loyalists

Girls March in Parade After Demonstration Seeking Removal of Superintendent.

Uniontown, Pa., March 29 (By A. P.).—A free-for-all fight was staged in the corridor of the Benjamin Franklin High school today when striking students of the Lafayette Junior high school sought to invade that building.

Hudson Rankin, a student on guard at the Benjamin Franklin building, suffered a cut hand and a bruised eye. A number of students were bruised.

The strikers, numbering about 100, left classes in an effort to force the resignation of Dr. Milton D. Proctor, superintendent of school. They staged a demonstration in front of the Lafayette Junior building this morning and then marched to the Benjamin Franklin building in another section of the city.

School officials said the scuffle lasted 15 or 20 minutes and ended when the striking students withdrew. About 30 girls were in the parade but the fighting was limited to boys.

A special meeting of the school board has been called for tonight to consider the situation. The striking students, who claim to have the support of their parents, are seeking the reinstatement of Dr. J. H. Allen, who was replaced as superintendent last fall by Dr. Proctor, formerly of White Plains, N. Y.

Former Alice Jones Now Will Ask for Separation From Knickerbocker Scion.

White Plains, N. Y., March 29 (By A. P.).—Leonard Kip Rhinelander, wealthy member of an old New York family, is through with his fight to obtain an annulment of his marriage to his wife of negro blood, Mrs. Alice Jones Rhinelander.

This became known today after the court of appeals at Albany refused to overturn the decision of Supreme Court Justice Morschauser, who had denied his plea for annulment.

Former Supreme Court Justice Isaac N. Mills, counsel for Rhinelander, said that no appeal would be taken, as the high court's decision precluded further action.

Mrs. Rhinelander, on the other hand, will probably take up the battle that has been waged by her husband for more than two years and will attempt to obtain a separation in her own behalf, her counsel said.

Offsetting the charge of falsely concealing her negro blood from him, upon which the action for annulment was based, the former New Rochelle housemaid will seek her separation on grounds of cruelty and abandonment, it was said. In the meantime, the $300 monthly alimony granted at the time of the original suit will continue.

This is the third legal defeat in a row suffered by the son of Philip Rhinelander since his marriage to Alice Beatrice Jones October 14, 1924.

500-Ton Mass of Ice Drops; Shakes Region

Fort William, Ontario, March 29.—A mysterious earthquake which rocked the district around Fort William Monday has been explained. After reports of terrified settlers of windows being broken and buildings shaken had come in, engineers from Kakabeka Falls reported that a huge mass of ice, estimated to weigh well over 500 tons, had crashed over the 110-foot cataract with a thud that jarred the whole countryside.

The fall of 110 feet made this solid block of ice a trifle over 150,000 foot tons by the time it hit the rocks below, engineers stated.

Wife Sues Modiste For Husband's Love

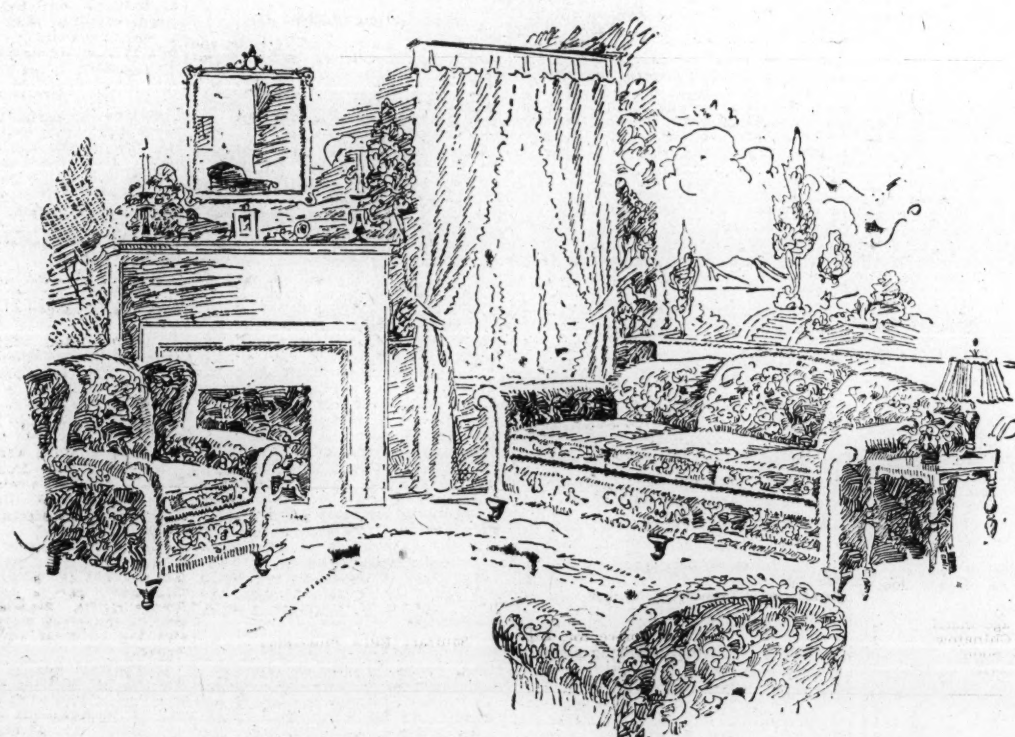

New York, March 29 (By A. P.).—Mrs. Jessie Simmons, of Park avenue, today filed suit for $100,000 against Bertha Stern, a dress designer, whom she accused of alienating the affections of her husband, Isaac Simmons. She declared he owed a $100,000 interest in the firm of Lewis & Simmons, art and antique dealers, with offices in New York, Chicago, London and Paris.

Mrs. Simmons recently obtained a separation and $16,000 yearly alimony, charging her husband "hit the high spots of New York night life with a woman dress designer."

WASHINGTON MARINE, FLYING IN NICARAGUA, FIRED ON BY FORCES

200 Liberals Shoot at Plane, Scoring 12 Hits at 1,500-Foot Height.

AVIATORS' MACHINE GUN SENDS HAIL OF BULLETS

Lone U. S. Sentry Near Leon Repels Attacking Natives With Rifle.

Lieut. F. H. Lamson-Scribner, Washingtonian and marine aviator, was attacked Monday by Nicaraguan liberals while flying a marine corps plane with Capt. H. D. Campbell, marine corps, of Vermont. Rear Admiral Julian L. Latimer, commanding the special service squadron in Nicaraguan waters, reported yesterday to the Navy Department.

Rear Admiral Latimer announced that about 200 liberals opened fire on the plane as it was making a reconnaissance about 9 miles east of Leon. While part of the plane's fuel was destroyed, neither officer was hurt. The plane flying at 1,500 feet altitude. Twelve bullets hit the plane.

Lieut. Lamson-Scribner, the observer, returned the fire with a machine gun, but no report of casualties had been received last yesterday.

Later reports from Admiral Latimer told of a skirmish between marines and Nicaraguans near Leon Sunday. A marine sentry was fired on and returned fire, the natives retreating. Lieut. Lamson-Scribner was born in this city in 1902 and was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1923, serving in marine corps aviation at San Diego, Calif., Quantico, Va., and Pensacola, Fla., his last station in this country.

Capt. Campbell was born in 1895 and appointed to the corps in 1917. He was the winner last year, of the Schiff Memorial trophy offered for the greatest number of hours flown without injury or plane damage.

Liberals Occupy Jinotega.

Managua, March 29 (By A. P.).—Official word was received here tonight that liberal forces have occupied the town of Jinotega, near Matagalpa. There was no battle for the town, which has a population of about 7,000, as the conservative forces withdrew as the liberals advanced.

American military attaché Bloor returned to Managua today after a three-day trip in the neighborhood of Boaco and Tierra Azul. He reported that the conservatives in the field numbered about 3,400, and the liberals 1,600.

He reported also that the army and Tierra Azul were under liberal control and that the liberals were cutting off a conservative advance on Matagalpa at Tierra Azul. A battle, consequently, is expected soon after.

In pursuit of bands, believed to be liberals, which fired on marine outposts at Leon on Sunday and on two marine observation planes yesterday, conservative aviators this afternoon reported scattered bands of liberals east of Leon.

Investigation of the marine planes showed twelve holes in the plane piloted by Capt. H. D. Campbell. One of the bullet holes was within a few inches of Lieut. F. H. Lamson-Scribner, observer. Six holes were found in the plane flown by Pilot Cushman. Return fire from Capt. Campbell's plane resulted in the display of many white flags on farmhouses today. Pilot Cushman said he realized that his plane had been hit until he landed and did not return the fire.

Daughter Dismisses Suit on Senate Body

Harry M. Daugherty, former Attorney General, who sued out a writ of injunction in the equity division of the District of Columbia Supreme Court on May 21, 1924, to prevent the Wheeler-Brookhart committee of the Senate from obtaining possession of copies of telegrams in possession of the Western Union Telegraph Co., dismissed his bill yesterday through his counsel, Long, Chamberlain & Myers.

The committee did not insist upon the production of the copies after Mr. Daugherty filed his suit.

A similar action, taken against the committee and the Postal Telegraph Co., has not yet been dismissed. The committee at that time was investigating the Department of Justice as conducted by Mr. Daugherty.

COL. BLANTON WINSHIP NEW WHITE HOUSE AID

Col. Sherwood A. Cheney to Resume Duty With Army Engineer Corps.

BOTH VETERANS OF WAR

A change in White House chief military aids was announced by President Coolidge yesterday. Col. Sherwood A. Cheney, engineers, leaving probably for harbor work and engineering projects in the First Corps area headquarters near Boston, and Col. Blanton Winship, acting division general of the army in the Department of the Interior, succeeded him.

Col. Winship was born in 1869 at Macon, Ga., where the family has resided since Maj. Philip Cook, an ancestor, commanded Fort Hawkins, the old Indian fort there. The daughter of Maj. Cook was the first white child born within the boundaries of where the city is now situated.

Col. Winship entered the army in 1898, serving in the Philippines, Cuba, Mexico and Europe. He was on the advisory commission of which Gen. Crowder was president for the revision of Cuban laws and was with Gen. Funston at Vera Cruz, Mexico, from 1912 to 1916, as officer in charge of civil affairs. In the world war he was awarded the distinguished service cross for extraordinary heroism at Lauchau-see and a War Department citation for gallantry in action near Villers-sur-Fere, France, the distinguished service medal and French Legion of Honor.

Following the world war he was director general of service pertaining to settlement of claims arising out of United States military activities in Europe, and later placed on duty with the reparations commission for execution of the treaties. He has been stationed in this city since 1923, coming here as law member of the court during the trial of former Col. William Mitchell, air corps.

Col. Cheney, appointed an additional military aid to President Coolidge in April, 1925, was born in Connecticut in 1873, and was graduated from West Point in 1897, spending his entire service in the corps of engineers, and reaching the grade of colonel in 1920. He returned in 1924, from a tour of duty as military attaché at Peking, and was attending the engineer school at Fort Humphreys, Va., when named as White House military aid.

CRIME CONFERENCE BEING CONSIDERED

Coolidge and Sargent Take Up Question of Calling National Meeting.

(By the Associated Press.)

The administration has been asked to sponsor a national conference for discussion of crime prevention and President Coolidge and Attorney General Sargent are considering the feasibility of such a meeting.

The exact nature of the question which the conference would consider and the agencies and organizations to be invited have not been deliberated, since the whole topic is still in a formative stage.

Activity here for a crime prevention meeting recalls the 1925 convention of the American Prison association at which a committee was appointed to see what could be done to bring together all national organizations in one way related to the study of crime. The committee, headed by Amos Butler, of Indianapolis, was reappointed in 1926. The committee has suggested a tentative invitation list to the Attorney General which includes a committee to be named by each of the governors so as to include parole agencies.

Hinckley's statement said that Mr. Hudson formerly was superintendent of the Michigan Antisaloons league, and in Congress, it added, he is "still true to his old master."

Coincident with Mr. Hinckley's charges, Mr. Wheeler issued a statement declaring that all of the $17,000,000 spent by his organization was "clean money given by unselfish folk for a patriotic purpose."

He said that funds would "look like a plugged nickel" along side of the money expended by the liquor interests.

The saloon league fund did, however, Mr. Wheeler added, "provide for sufficient educational work among the citizens to prevent the brewers' propagandists from defeating the enforcement of prohibition."

"These attacks upon the Antisaloons league emphasize the silence of the committee's (Senate campaign funds committee) report on the activities of the wet, their financing by brewers and others interested in the liquor business and their disregard of the statutory requirements concerning political organizations and campaign funds under the Federal corrupt practice act."

"We sent to the investigation committee letters and documents which substantiated our insistence that the wet had been ignoring or violating the law and the Antisaloons league had been

RADIO WITNESSES UNANIMOUS AGAINST WIDER WAVE BANDS

Commission Is Told 18,000 Amateurs Would Be Interfered With Below 200 Meters.

PROPOSED LIMITATION OF POWER IS DEBATED

Geographical Allotment of Wavelengths Is Suggested; Local Expert Talks.

(By the Associated Press.)

Setting out to chart its general policy, the Federal radio commission at the first of hearings called to develop the sentiment of radio interests as a guide, yesterday heard the views of more than a dozen representatives of the industry on proposals to remedy the existing congestion of the air.

Unanimous objection to any widening of the broadcasting band, now spread between 200 and 545 meters, to accommodate the 733 stations now operating on 89 wave lengths in the United States, was expressed by manufacturers, engineers and amateur radio experts.

The only other phase of the subject taken up, proposed limitation of power of stations, developed some differences of opinion.

Experts introduced by Frank D. Scott, special counsel for the National Association of Broadcasters and the Radio Manufacturers association, told the commission that to expand the existing band would render practically useless approximately $600,000,000 worth of receiving sets because they were not built for reception on wave lengths other than those now in use. They added that sets now held by dealers and those being sold by manufacturers also would have to be scrapped and that experiments thus far had not proven that sets to meet the proposed changes were feasible.

To go below the 200-meter wavelength minimum now in force, it was contended, would make it necessary for the commercial broadcaster to enter the field now allocated to about 18,000 amateurs, while to expand beyond the 545-meter maximum would be "an interference upon the field of the maritime service."

Jenkins Testifies.

Jack Blinn, hero of the Republic disaster of 1909, when he sent out the first S O S call by radio, was among those who opposed band expansion. Other witnesses, E. F. Bayard, vice president of the National Electrical Manufacturers association; R. H. Langley, Crosley Radio Corporation; F. A. Solter, Federal Telephone Manufacturing Co.; Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith, Radio Corporation of America; Lambert Kay, announcer at station WSB, Atlanta; K. B. Warner, American Radio Relay league, and C. Francis Jenkins, radio inventor, of Washington.

Paul Coulter, of the Newark (N. J.) Evening News, said there appeared to be a need for an increase of power. He said that the time has arrived when power was given broadcast stations in places where reception already was poor.

Ray H. Manson, chief engineer of the Stromberg-Carlson Telephone Manufacturing Co., was of the opinion that no arbitrary power limit should be placed on stations, and that there should be sufficient power to serve rural communities day and night.

Fears More Interference.

L. C. F. Horie, Federal Radio Corporation of Buffalo, said he did not see how there could be an increase in kilowatt allotments without an increase in interference, and that existing limits should be maintained until the number of stations are reduced.

H. B. Hough, a Fort Worth, Tex., announcer, told the commission that limitation of power should be considered from a geographical standpoint.

Samuel A. Waiter, of the Worcester, Mass., Telegram, advised it to be very careful in assigning frequencies, while E. H. Felix, of Doubleday, Page & Co., thought power allocation should be by districts and that there should be definite proportions of channels for definite powers.

of them sent here. Others are in Chicago, where he now lives and will be brought.

Once in being cross-examined by Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, chief of Ford counsel, Sapiro flared out angrily.

"Did you make away with the books and accounts?" Senator Reed drew in interrogation concerning Sapiro's legal receipts in 1914-1916, when Sapiro practiced alone.

"I never made away with books or records of any kind in my life," Sapiro stormed out, half rising angrily from the witness chair.

"I didn't ask you about your life," Sapiro returned, "I asked you about the books and records," he returned.

"No," emphatically replied Sapiro. The witness testified that he had "no idea in the world" where they were.

Senator Reed himself was goaded during the day. In discussing the plight of California tomato growers during the world war, Sapiro testified they appealed futilely to numerous persons for help until Senator Reed was asked to assist.

"Did Senator Reed help?" asked Gallagher.

"Yes," replied Sapiro, smiling at the opposing counsel.

OPEN INTERVENTION FOR LATIN AMERICA IS FAVORED BY EDGE

Senator, Back From Trip, Urges Policy to Protect Nation's Interests.

"IMPERIALISTIC DESIGNS" UNDISCOVERED, HE SAYS

Asserts U. S. Should Strive to Establish Fair Elections for Countries.

Frank acceptance of intervention in the political affairs of Central America as the settled and stable policy of the United States—intervention which expresses and implies more than the mere protection of life and property and will insure fair elections—was urged yesterday by Senator Walter E. Edge, of New Jersey, of the Senate foreign relations committee, who just has returned from a visit to Central America.

Senator Edge did not visit Nicaragua, where American marines are preserving order, due to the belief that the situation there was not understood. However, he did go to Costa Rica, just to the south, and from his conversations with American representatives and native leaders there, he concluded that the United States has obligations in the Caribbean which neither its interests nor the desires of the various nations in South America will enable it to escape.

Nothing he was able to discover, said Senator Edge, supported the charge so often made that the country had "imperialistic designs." In the Central American republics, such statements he found were "stock arguments" advanced by opposition and "no representative or responsible citizen seriously believed the United States had any desire further than permitting a stable government to exist."

He asserted that the business men of the United States, already through invitation deeply interested in the policy, might properly continue their activities.

Qualifications Not Needed.

Senator Edge did express the absolute conviction that the time had come for this government to make no qualifications to its policy of "intervention," and that this nation's main responsibility over and above the protection of American life and property was to encourage the policy of free elections through which to establish change of governments.

Lacking this, Senator Edge said, it is impossible to have a series of revolutions, the only method by which minorities appear able or willing to express themselves. In the event of a revolution, he said the United States will have to protect the lives and property of its nationals, so that help in restoring representative and fair elections seems the better course.

By adopting such a policy, Senator Edge believed, it would not only be possible to let Central America be governed by its own people, but much of the domestic criticism of this country's policy in the Caribbean would be checked. At present, he said, the United States in this country of the State Department's policies was doing much to aid and comfort the revolutionary faction in Nicaragua.

"I frankly will admit," said Senator Edge, "that while I unhesitatingly approve of the policy of placing marines wherever American lives or property rights may be in danger, we might just as well accept the fact that this is an effect of intervention just the same."

"Personally, I approve of this type of intervention and believe it justified. I believe, however, the time has arrived when we should call it by its right name. Should Encourage Elections."

"As I see the future of Central America, our main responsibility is to encourage the policy of fair elections through which to establish or change governments."

"The average opposition party in Central America seems to be convinced a revolution is, under existing conditions, the most satisfactory type of primary election, and that they have little chance to successfully oppose the party in power through the casting and counting of ballots."

"I must admit there is something in this contention on the part of the opposition, as it must be conceded that so far as protecting elections is concerned, we ourselves are far from the millennium. In Central America they probably are 100 years behind us."

"We further must admit the opposition has a perfect right from the standpoint of self-determination, to change an existing government in an orderly manner. The revolutionists contend they have not such an opportunity. I cannot pass on this beyond what I already have stated, and as long as present conditions exist, revolutions from time to time will be threatened if not properly handled."

"When this happens, either we must send our marines or revolutions will be apparently more or less continuous with a loss of life and property, not alone confined to the belligerents. Our efforts, therefore, should be, if it is possible and acceptable, to assist in helping to provide opportunities for representatives and fair elections."

Forces Sent Thirty Times.

"Anyhow, the present system apparently will never permit us to be free from military occupation. I think it was Dr. Shephard, I recently wrote that we had dispatched military forces to points in the Caribbean more than 30 times since 1898."

"In the meantime, the critics of the State Department at home must recognize that the apparent disagreement in public circles here as to policy, furnished encouragement to continue revolution. I can not conceive any policy that this government can follow no matter what political party the administration may represent, other than to recognize existing governments in these countries as provided by the 1922 conventions entered into by them."

"In fact, it is my firm conviction that the popular pastime of taking issue or exception to every act of the State Department is prolonging the so-called revolution in Nicaragua more than it is the actual maintenance of armed troops. It was not until necessary to go to Central America to ascertain that fact, but a brief visit to the vicinity has confirmed this viewpoint."

"If continuation of our policy of many years means, in effect, that we are helping to maintain existing governments, then in my judgment we are under the conditions, justified in such a policy. There always will be an opposition, there to criticize us whatever we do, but it seems to me conducive to more satisfactory final results if the criticisms were confined to Central America. Otherwise, we are only aiding and encouraging strife, both demoralizing and destructive."

DE PINEDO ARRIVES OFF NEW ORLEANS

land was at the mouth of the Mississippi, which we followed up to New Orleans, maintaining a height of 1,500 feet.

"We had luncheon at 10:30 o'clock this morning about half way between Havana and New Orleans, eating bread and cheese and drinking a bottle of Chianti, our last."

"Our photograph, the official memento of the tour, has almost worn out the one record we have found room to carry—'Who.' An American tourist—but we turned it on as we came over the coast line."

Questioned concerning the fascist tax on unmarried, eligible males, De Pinedo said he would have to pay about 1,000 lire a year, or about $50.

"But it's worth much more than that to be single," he added.

The monoplane, bearing the Italian colors—red, green and white—on the under surface, was the first of the kind sent to the mouth of the Mississippi from New Orleans to meet him and missed the landing field, where a welcoming committee awaited him.

It alighted in the river near the center of the city and was towed downstream to the industrial canal entrance, in the inner harbor. There the flyer was greeted by Dr. Paul Rossi, Italian consul, and a reception committee which escorted him to the historic St. Louis cathedral, where a Te Deum was sung by Archbishop Shaw.

The plane will be overhauled here. Eleven crates of parts already had been shipped here for the work.

The plane is equipped with pontoons in which are located the cabins containing the controls and living quarters for the crew. The engine is at the highest point of the craft and is equipped with propellers for aft.

(By the Associated Press.)

The National Aeronautic association extended congratulations to Col. de Pinedo, the Italian transatlantic flyer, upon his arrival at New Orleans yesterday, in a telegram from Porter Adams, its president.

The message characterized De Pinedo as "a pioneer of progress, whose flight demonstrates to all the world that the highways of the air have no barriers to the dauntless." His flight also was described as an "epoch-making journey."

28,023 Aliens Enter U. S. During January

A total of 28,023 aliens were admitted to the United States during the month of January, and 13,981 departed, according to a report made public yesterday by the Department of Labor. During the same month, 16,913 Americans returned to this country and 21,483 left for foreign lands.

Nearly two-thirds of the aliens admitted are new arrivals, who plan to make their homes in the United States. It was said. Of the total, 9,389 came from the Americas, Canada leading with 5,408, and Mexico next with 3,430. Germany supplied 3,247 and Great Britain 3,130.

GIBSON MAKES POSSIBLE DISCUSSION OF RESERVES

Must Consider Force to Prevent Hidden Strength, Geneva Meeting Is Told.

OPPOSES FRENCH PLAN

Geneva, March 29 (By A. P.).—The United States delegates attending the sessions of the League of Nations preparatory commission on disarmament would like to see the world's armaments fully covered by the provisions of the general disarmament treaty which the commission is seeking to formulate.

This was made evident today when Hugh Gibson, United States Minister to Switzerland and American delegate to the commission, took a hand in the discussions of the question of army reserves.

President Louzon, of the commission, had announced that the delegates were unable to agree on the question of reserves, before Mr. Gibson delivered his address, which cleared the path to possible reconsideration of the matter.

Mr. Gibson proposed the creation of two categories of troops, one consisting of active forces and the other of reservists. He suggested laying down a separate system of limitation for each category. Apparently, however, there is still a small chance for reaching an agreement to limit reserves. Mr. Gibson wants the treaty, when it goes before the senate, to contain at least a statement of the number of reservists in each country, so that American public opinion can exactly visualize the international military situation. He told the committee that failure to consider reserves would keep 90 per cent of a country's military strength out of the picture.

Mr. Gibson opposed the French proposal to split up the active army into home and overseas forces for purposes of limitation. He pointed out that the United States army necessarily is mobile, and under the French plan a regiment sent to the Panama Canal Zone, for instance, would be subjected to double limitation restrictions. A tentative agreement was reached for the limitation of home and colonial forces as a whole, with statements appended showing how they are divided.

Federal Judge Issues Rule Against Authorities in Delaware County.

Philadelphia, March 29 (By A. P.).—A Federal court rule was issued today by Delaware county authorities to show cause why they should not turn over ballot boxes and other records in their custody to the Senate special committee investigating the election contest brought by William B. Wilson, Democrat, against Senator-elect W. S. Vare, Republican.

The rule is returnable April 18, the Delaware county officials having 15 days to file answers or demurrers.

The rule is directed at Hon. C. Burney and Thomas M. Peckey, county commissioners of Delaware; William Ward, Jr., prothonotary of the Delaware county courts; and John J. Saling, a justice of the peace in Upper Darby, custodian of some of the ballot boxes. They had declined to turn over the boxes and records without a court order.

MARINES, OFF FOR CHINA, BID GOODBY TO FRIENDS

AMERICANS ORDERED OUT SOUTH OF YELLOW RIVER

U. S. Legation Seeks Evacuation, Due to Rapid Advance of Nationalists.

ICHANG FEAR INCREASES

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Peking, March 29.—The American legation has extended an evacuation order to the Americans in Anhwei, southern Shantung and Honan provinces, thus abandoning all the territory south of the Yellow river, except the settlement at Shanghai.

This was occasioned by the rapid advance of the nationalist forces, which now menace Pengu, 110 miles north of Nanking. Sixteen Presbyterian missionaries are concentrated at Hwaiyuan, 30 miles west of Pengu, awaiting aid. There also are five mission families at Hsuehchow, 102 miles north of Pengu. Employees of the Standard Oil Co. of New York and other Americans at Tsinan, capital of Shantung, are moving to Tsingtao, where the Japanese are sending warships.

All the foreigners, consuls and warships are leaving Changsha, where the end of the extraterritoriality has been proclaimed. Ichang, on the Yangtze gorges, reports increasing anti-foreignism, with unfavorable reactions feared. The American gunboat El Cano and British and Japanese gunboats are remaining there until the evacuation of Chungking has been completed.

The American Catholic mission on French leased territory in southern Kwangtung was looted, but the priests reached Kowch, at the southern extremity of China. No casualties were reported.

The Hankow government is determined to make an issue of the bias bay destruction by the British forces, protesting to the consul against the destruction of 50 homes of nonoffenders and 50 junks by air bombs and shells.

The British legation asserts that some pirates were captured and evidence of widespread ramifications was found.

Consul John K. Davis notified the American legation of the discovery of a premeditated attack on Nanking, including an assembly under false flags, with officers directing the shooting, burning and looting.

Peking and Tientsin remain quiet, but the soviet embassy is being watched for guerrillas suspected to have contact with the bolshheviks.

for a moment the abandonment of their program in China, whatever the situation may be," Dr. A. L. Warnshuis, secretary of the foreign missions conference of North America, today counseled a redoubting of Christian forces supporting missionary activities.

Following a conference of various missionary boards at their headquarters here this afternoon, Dr. Warnshuis declared the boards recognize the seriousness of the situation in China, but he said, "too little is being said about the great body of Chinese opinion which is naturally conservative, which is not vocal, and which for the time being is holding itself in reserve while the destructive forces are working themselves out."

Probably not more than 20 per cent of the missionaries in China, he said, have been compelled to leave their posts. The seriousness of the present situation, the statement added, is increased by statements "intentionally exaggerated, which tend to incite anti-foreign feeling."

Chen Guarantees Safety
Of Catholic Missionaries

St. Columban, Neb., March 29 (By A. P.).—An unprecedented guarantee of the safety of Catholic sisters connected with the St. Columban mission at Hanyang, China, has been made by Eugene Chen, minister of foreign affairs, said a cable message received today at headquarters of the order here.

The message came from the Rev. John O'Leary, superior of the St. Columban missionaries in the Hanyang district.

Religious communities affected by the guarantee are the Sisters of Loretto, whose motherhouse is at Nerinx, Ky., and the Sisters of St. Columban. Both orders have been engaged in educational work at Hanyang since 1923, and intend to remain at their posts under the Canton government's guarantee of safety.

Priests working in the same district also intend to remain under a similar promise of protection.

Hanyang is directly across the Yangtze river from Wu Chang, the Cantonese headquarters. There are no foreign concessions there.

Plot Against Tientsin
Concessions Is Rumored

London, March 29 (By A. P.).—Information has reached the Anglo-Chinese headquarters in Peking indicating that a serious plot is brewing to demonstrate against the foreign concessions in Tientsin, important city of the north, says a Peking dispatch to the Westminster Gazette.

The dispatch adds that it was proposed to consult the various legations on concerted action for the protection of foreigners and that Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian war lord, has stated that he would do everything in his power to protect the foreigners.

LONG CHEERS START MARINES FROM HERE ON WAY TO PACIFIC

Friends and Relatives Give Ovation to Departing 50 at Station.

OTHERS GO TO QUANTICO TO BID MEN GOOD-BY

Seven Troop Trains to Leave for Coast Embarking Point Today.

Cheers greeted Washington's representation in the second marine expeditionary force to China, when it began the first lap of its journey to the Orient, yesterday, on a street car. At Union station the ovation was renewed when the 50 local leathernecks left for Quantico, Va., to become part of the re-created Sixth regiment to bring law and order to China under direction of Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler.

Friends, relatives and bystanders grouped around the local sea soldiers as they boarded a train at the station. Many friends and relatives were disappointed that the Quantico troop train's schedules had omitted Washington, and hurried to Quantico to say farewell when final traffic arrangements were made known.

Two trains, bearing artists and aviators, left Quantico yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, over the following route: R. F. & P. railroad, to Richmond; Southern railway to New Orleans; Gulf Coast line to Houston, and Santa Fe to San Diego, Calif., embarking point.

"Good-by and good luck," said Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, corps commander, who bade farewell to the first trainloads at Quantico yesterday. He also will witness the departure of those who leave today.

In a short address he told them to conduct themselves according to the standards and traditions of the corps.

Situation in Wuhu Worse, Admiral Hough Warns

Nanking Affair Could Hardly Have Been Worse, U. S. Envoy at Peking Reports—Investigators Emphasize Signs of Premeditation.

(By the Associated Press.)

Despite an apparent lull in the storm of Chinese anti-foreignism which burst at Nanking last week, official word received here yesterday that the situation at Wuhu, farther up the Yangtze river, was worse, and trouble might be expected there at any moment.

At the same time a message, forwarded to the State Department by Minister MacMurray at Peking, suggested immediate withdrawal of all Americans from nationalist territory and in view of the outbreak at Nanking "the undertaking of some action sufficiently strong to deter the perpetration of similar incidents elsewhere."

The incident at Nanking could hardly have been more outrageous," a message relayed by Mr. MacMurray said, adding that there had been two attempts at criminal assault on American women during the rioting.

"Suggestion is made of the immediate withdrawal of all Americans from nationalist territory and the undertaking of some action sufficiently strong to deter the perpetration of similar incidents elsewhere."

On the heels of this grave picture of what might have underlain the Nanking rioting came a report from Rear Admiral Hough, still at that port, that the situation at Wuhu, farther up the Yangtze river, was worse, and trouble might be expected there at any moment. No details were given.

State Department records do not show how many Americans are at Wuhu. There were 28 American nationals registered there last year. Some are known to have left, but others may have come in from surrounding mission stations.

MacMurray already has taken steps to urge Americans to withdraw from nationalist-controlled territory, even at Canton. Today's dispatches showed he had amplified this by new appeals and warnings to all Americans remaining in northern Honan province, south of the Yellow river.

Spread of the danger area into Shantung province, heretofore solidly held by the northern allies, was disclosed in a message from Consul A. G. Swaney at Tsinanfu. Evacuation of the Americans from the southern section of Shantung was proceeding satisfactorily, he said, and Tsinanfu itself remained quiet but with "pronounced anti-foreign feeling" evident. Precautions for protection of foreigners in this territory have been taken.

Retreat of the Shantung troops, which collapsed before Shanghai, he believed to account for the American evacuation of southern Shantung. Prematurely the nationalists are already pressing on the heels of the retreating troops, intending to press through Shantung as the right wing of a drive toward Peking. In that event towns in the southern part of the province may soon be the scene of the looting and rioting and the efforts of Consul Swaney are directed toward getting Americans out of danger while there is time.

There are sixteen Americans still in the northern part of Anhwei province just south of Shantung. Swaney said he was trying also to get them out, as they are even in greater danger of being caught than in the turmoil of civil war that engulfed Nanking.

Soldiers "Just Kids."

"This bunch were just kids—all under 20 but the leader—but they were armed to the teeth, much better than the northern soldiers. We finally got away when our money was gone. The soldiers then began looting Soocny House and made a clean job. We were still unarmed and helpless. We could have cleaned out a whole lot of them with our automatic pistols."

As for the final terms moments, Wilson described them as "not so bad," adding: "The consul ordered us to resume our arms, which we gladly did. We returned the fire, and I know I picked off seven. Then, on Mr. Davis' orders, we gave the 'begin firing' signal from the veranda and roof, and soon the shells from the warships came down, the No. 9 arriving first."

Japan Withdraws Force.

Tokyo, March 29 (By A. P.).—The Japanese cabinet at a meeting today understood to have decided to refrain from force in China, but to endeavor to secure a peaceful solution by diplomatic means. The Japanese minister in Peking will be instructed accordingly.

FIRING AT AMERICANS.

The firing upon an American military airplane by Nicaraguan revolutionists on Monday nearly resulted in the death of two aviators. The fusillade was deliberate, and was perpetrated by a force of about 200 men, using rifles and machine guns.

The Sacasa revolutionists are evidently intensely hostile to the Americans who are preventing them from overturning the Diaz government. A clash between the revolutionists and the American marines, leading to the suppression of the revolution by the American forces, is to be expected. Dr. Sacasa long ago foreshadowed the outcome when he attempted to lay the blame in advance upon the United States. But he could not explain away the fact that he was supported by Mexican money and arms in his attack upon the constitutional government of Nicaragua.

Senator Edge, who has just returned from Central America, takes the position that the United States has "intervened" in Nicaragua, and he defends intervention on the ground that there is no alternative if those countries are to be saved from continual revolutions. The charge of imperialism, hurled against the United States, emanated in every case from revolutionists and their sympathizers, whose schemes were thwarted by the United States.

The conscience of the United States is clear in the matter of recognizing and supporting constitutional government in Nicaragua. This government could not honorably take another course. If refused to recognize the Chamorro government. By the same reasoning it was bound, to recognize the Diaz government. When that government was attacked by revolutionists, financed by Mexico, endangering American life and property and the interests of the United States government in Nicaragua, it was President Coolidge's duty to send a force down to protect American interests and American life. If this force should be attacked, the next necessary step will be taken—the suppression of the revolution.

The alternative to permanent American occupation of Nicaragua is the establishment of a stable and constitutional government there, supported if necessary by American arms. As President Coolidge has just said, the United States can not permit Nicaragua to sink into anarchy. That country can not be permitted to fall into the hands of enemies of the United States.

The Sacasa revolutionists will get only what they deserve if they call down upon themselves the military forces of the United States. They can not kill Americans with impunity. President Coolidge need not hesitate to use the "big stick" in Nicaragua or anywhere else in the world, when Americans and American interests are at stake. He will be supported by the mass of the American people. The few Americans who seek notoriety by criticizing their government as "imperialistic" and "always wrong" whenever it enforces American rights have no influence whatever except among deluded foreign enemies, who make the great mistake of thinking that these Americans represent a large proportion of the people and may be able to influence the policy of the government.

The President of the United States alone is authorized to speak for this country in dealing with foreign peoples and governments. It would be well for them to listen to what he says, and to interpret accurately what he does not say. If these foreigners listen to self-constituted, irresponsible spokesmen of the United States they may make a fearful mistake.

STAGE IMMORALITY.

The author and coproducers of "The Virgin Man," previously closed by the New York district attorney, have received fines and jail sentences, and the cast of the company have received suspended sentences in special sessions court. In the meantime the cast and producers of another allegedly indecent and obscene play have been called to trial, and the latter case will be prosecuted by the same attorney who obtained the convictions in the "Virgin Man" case.

The history of New York's battle against stage immorality is being written slowly. After having attempted to gain control of the situation by various other methods, the district attorney for New York city announced the first of the year that in the future he intended to bring into play the criminal code, holding all who participate in obscene productions responsible under the law. The case just decided constitutes a signal victory for the prosecution.

The public has demonstrated that it will not boycott improper productions. Therefore criminal prosecution is the only available method of suppressing stage vice. Of course only a small part of the potential audience of New York, or of any other city for that matter, demands indecent entertainment. Such productions, however, placed on the boards and made easily accessible, invite the curious and evil-minded and are very profitable. Indiscretions of the morals of the entire community are undermined, all because producers prefer dirty dollars to decency.

The court decision will have a wholesome effect, and with this precedent it may be expected that the district attorney will find it possible to continue a vigorous campaign with tangible results.

TWO VIEWS ON IMMIGRATION.

Assistant Secretary Husband, of the Department of Labor, in an address made at the School of Politics, took a somewhat roseate view of the immigration situation. He pointed out that under the quota law the old time immigrant peoples of northwest Europe now furnish about the same proportion of our European newcomers as they did 50 years ago, and it can be truthfully said, according to Mr. Husband, that "no finer class of immigrants ever crossed the Atlantic than are coming to our ports at the present time." He expressed the opinion that the immigration problem has about reached the "sugaring off stage" and he is sure that there will be a general agreement that so far results have been conspicuously successful.

Mr. Husband appears to differ in his viewpoint in a rather important degree with the outlook as seen by Chairman Johnson, of the House committee on immigration. In an interview in New York Mr. Johnson asserted his belief that the "bootlegging" of immigrants from southeastern Europe has grown to an alarming extent through the admission of fake sailors, and that hundreds of Latin-American negroes are admitted via Porto Rico. These persons come in, according to Mr. Johnson, with faked birth certificates or other forged papers. There are in the city of New York, according to his information, 100,000 "Porto Ricans" at the present time, and the number is increasing at the rate of more than 300 a month.

Altogether the chairman of the committee on immigration looks with more alarm than satisfaction upon the situation as he finds it, and in his interview seems to favor a policy of still further restriction. He is reported to believe "that the next reasonable and rational steps are cutting down the 2 per cent quota by 10 per cent each year for five years until it is one half the present scale and the restriction of those coming across the border from Canada and Mexico."

Mr. Johnson has started on a tour of the country studying immigration problems. The result of his investigations may be found in the immigration, naturalization and deportation legislation that he will offer at the next session.

A GRADE-CROSSING CONTEST.

A dollar a word is rather high pay for a literary beginner, yet three students may receive exactly that if they can produce the best three essays calculated to reduce the dangers of automobile accidents at railroad crossings. The American Railway association has started a campaign to reduce the number of crossing accidents, through which 2,492 persons lost their lives in 1926, that number being nearly 300 in excess of similar fatalities at railroad crossings during the preceding year. To arouse general interest in this campaign the association offers three prizes of $250 each for three essays which shall be adjudged the best on the subject of the prevention of such accidents.

The prizes will be awarded one each to college high school and grammar school students whose essays contain outstanding and readily available suggestions. The essays must be limited to 250 words and should be terse, logical and constructive, and must particularly stress the need of the utmost care in approaching and passing over railroad crossings.

The railroads of the country all realize that it is largely due to the increase in the number of automobiles and the impulse "to beat the train" that so many accidents are due. They also realize that the elimination of grade crossings altogether would solve the problem in the very best possible manner, but that is out of the question, both because of the time involved and the enormous cost. Therefore the students of schools and colleges are to be given the opportunity to submit suggestions that may help to reduce the number of preventable casualties.

Sixty days are available for the preparation of the manuscripts, which will be passed upon by teachers and county superintendents.

HENRY FORD'S GROCERY STORES.

Henry Ford's desire to reduce the cost of living for his thousands of employees led him to establish markets and stores for them in the neighborhood of his plants. That was perhaps commendable on his part, so long as he limited his customers to those who are on his pay roll. But his staff found it impossible to prevent outsiders from using his establishments.

The legal adage "caveat emptor" was reversed in the case of the Ford groceries. The buyer had nothing to "beware" about. It was the seller who needed to be on the lookout, and "caveat vendor" better fitted the situation. At last Uncle Henry became tired of beating off the outside purchaser, and announcement was made that all buyers would be welcome. And these buyers from the Ford stores, which are displayed in many cities and towns in Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky and other States, in which the billionaire automobile maker has plants, declare that they can buy supplies from the Ford stores at a saving of from 10 per cent to 40 per cent.

It is not in the line of food alone that the competition of the Ford stores is felt. He sells clothing, shoes, drugs, cosmetics, candies, and a variety of small wares at prices that others can not meet. For more than a year there has been carried on a quiet boycott against these establishments, principally in Detroit. Wholesalers have been approached and urged to refuse to sell to the Ford shops.

One of the big packing houses of Chicago is reported to have responded by directing the branch houses to refuse to make sales to any of them. But in spite of the boycott the stores "keep a going," and apparently their business has not suffered in the least.

Now the retail merchants of Detroit, Cleveland and other cities are appealing to wholesalers and other dealers to carry the boycott further, to the extent of refusing to use Ford delivery trucks in their work. Appeals have been made to Mr. Ford personally as well as to the managers of his companies to save the retailers from the competition which they all declare threatens to ruin them.

Mr. Ford thus far has shown no signs of closing his grocery establishments, his clothing stores, or his salvage establishments, which is the polite name for the shops in which second-hand, or used, clothing and other cast-off supplies are to be had. Evidently he is determined to give food and clothing buyers the benefit of his ability to purchase by the ton what others are compelled to buy by the hundredweight, just as he offers to the public the advantage that he enjoys in mass production of fabrics.

LIBERAL VICTORY IN BRITAIN.

The optimism, recently expressed by David Lloyd George as to the future of liberalism in Britain, has received at least one rather strong confirmation in the result of the by-election held this week to choose a member of the house of commons for the northern division of Southwark, near London.

The vacancy which had to be filled there arose in a rather peculiar way. The sitting member for the division, Dr. Haden Guest, was elected as a laborite, but a few weeks ago severed his connection with the labor party on account of his disagreement with its then China policy. At that time, labor took the stand that British ships and landing forces should be withdrawn from China, but Dr. Guest declared it was impossible to leave British nationals unprotected in Shanghai. He could, of course, have retained his seat in defiance of his former colleagues, but, instead of doing so, he resigned, honorably and manfully, from parliament by applying for the Chiltern Hundreds, and decided to ask the votes of his constituents again as an independent conservative.

Two other candidates also entered the field, one, E. A. Strauss, a liberal, and the other, George Isaacs, a laborite. The former had already represented Southwark in the house of commons from 1910 to 1923. The contest was fiercely fought from the beginning. Even Lloyd George himself, when he appeared on the platform in the interest of the liberal candidate, was howled down by socialists and communists, and was unable to proceed with his address until the disturbers were forcibly ejected.

As a rule, when there is a three-cornered fight, the laborite is the gainer, but it did not turn out that way in Southwark, for when the poll was declared on Monday last it was found that the liberal was elected by 7,334 votes to 6,167 for the laborite, and the independent conservative a bad third, with 3,215.

One swallow does not make a summer, and one by-election victory does not make a strong parliamentary party, but the result at Southwark, following hard upon a succession of rather ignominious defeats, will give new heart and hope to the followers of Lloyd George, and will inspire them to earnest organization and to a sustained effort to make the predictions of their leader come true.

TELEPHONES AND AUTOMOBILES.

Guessing at the number of telephones in use in the United States, one would naturally say that there are many more of those instruments than there are automobiles. And the guess would be wrong. The total number of telephones in the Bell system, as reported by the officials of that corporation and its subsidiaries, is 16,000,000, with 1,500,000 additional operated by the independent companies, which brings the aggregate up to 17,500,000.

As to information concerning the number of automobiles registered in the United States the good roads bureau of the Department of Agriculture reports that during 1926 the total registration of motor vehicles exceeded the total number of telephones in use by more than 4,500,000. The actual number registered was 22,001,393.

Of the 48 States, 7 show registrations in excess of a million each. New York ranks No. 1 with 1,815,424 machines, upon which fees amounting to $28,786,421 were paid. California had 1,600,475 registered and collected $8,477,233. Then followed Ohio with 1,480,246 cars and $9,818,873 in revenue. Pennsylvania had nearly as many cars, the total being 1,455,184 vehicles, and $2,645,349 receipts. Illinois followed Pennsylvania with 1,370,593 registrations and $14,047,208 in fees. Michigan registered 1,118,785 and received $16,953,685, and seventh in the million class was Texas, with 1,049,869 cars, for which the owners paid $14,362,883 into the revenues of the State.

There is a wide range in the cost of registration, as shown by the totals presented. In the District of Columbia, for instance, the average charge in 1926 was $5. In Illinois the fee was $10.25, in Maryland, $11.25; in New York, $15.25; in Louisiana, $16.50, and in Connecticut, $23.25.

Of the total number of vehicles registered, 19,237,171 were passenger cars, including taxis and buses, and 2,764,222 were trucks and tractors. The available figures do not show the value of this great fleet of vehicles. Estimated at only $500 each, however, the total value of the cars registered last year in the United States was more than $11,000,000,000.

PRESS COMMENT.

With a Grain of—
Cincinnati Enquirer: You have taken your modern biographies nowadays with a bit of limburger.

The Diplomat.
Atlanta Constitution: A diplomat is one who never talks about himself when his visitor wants to talk about himself.

Economic Waste.
Portland Times: Lowbrow says the greatest economic waste is to kill a perfectly good sheep to make a college diploma.

Speed the Day.
Lafayette Journal and Courier: The time will come when the drunken motorist will be treated like a mad dog on wheels.

The Idea Have Gone.
Buffalo News: The idea of March have come and gone for Federal income taxpayers. This year it is a fine dispensation that postpones the Easter bills to mid-April.

The Willing Nickel.
Boston Transcript: The public is reminded that about the only thing a 5-cent piece can do today is to open a savings account. Which may be taken as showing that while spurned in the marts of trade the nickel is not too proud to go to work.

Selective Banditry.
Ohio State Journal: We shall come out unreservedly for Senator Borah's resolution to send the Senate foreign relations committee to Mexico, &c., to ascertain the true situation right there on the ground, when, as and if we learn definitely that Senator Heflin's a member of it, and we suppose the bandits would pick out the one that acted most important to kidnap and hold for ransom.

A New Conception.
Baltimore Sun: Now that State Department waste baskets are emptied during office hours, one gains a more profound regard for intellectual output of that organization. The new procedure, it seems, is designed to checkmate those snoopers who extract precious secrets from the trash. And if the stuff that the department's thinkers discard is so valuable, how incalculably rich and rare must be the ideas which they put into safe keeping for future use.

Anxious Helpers.
New Albany Tribune: Do you know that farmers and a lot of other folks are becoming tired of being "helped"? The practical ones have discovered that a man or a woman can best help himself or herself. Self-help develops one's self, while a continual seeking, asking or receiving help from others has a weakening influence. People who keep it up lose their self-respect. When the anxious helpers are looked over, they are in a great many cases simply grandstand performers, who are out really to feather their own nests in some way rather than help others.

Compensation.
Manchester Union: An early spring was to be expected. True to her law of compensation, nature always strikes a balance. If one crop fails, the next is better than usual. If the summer is dry, the autumn will make it up. If frosts come early in the fall, they will leave early in the spring. Old Mother Nature never cheats us. Sometimes she seems to be meager with her gifts, but she always makes it up with some excessive generosity. Spring will be

How to Win Friends

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN you are young, you can make friends among your own kind easily for the simple and unflattering reason that youth is easily pleased.

But in middle age, the friends you want are harder to win than a city and the loss of a friend is a great tragedy. Friends are hard to win for two reasons: First, because your dignity does not permit you to make advances; second, because experience has taught them to be wary of advances.

There is a way to win hearts, however, if you are willing to adopt it. Suppose that some impulse moves you to give old clothes to a certain poor family. You investigate their need, perhaps, for a moment they occupy the foreground. If you help them a second time, you begin to feel a lively interest in their struggles. Within a month you have adopted them.

Helping them makes you feel bountiful and therefore appeals to your vanity. The joy of being charitable has made you their friend.

This same twist of human nature will make friends for you. If you do a man a favor, he won't think more of you. He may only think more of himself and think he got his just deserts.

But if you persuade a man to do you a favor—even the slightest—you place yourself in the position of a supplicant, which means that you admit his superiority. His vanity is pleased, and he will be more ready to do you a second favor. In a month he will call you Billy and all you need to establish and cement a genuine friendship is ordinary sense—granting that you twain are congenial in the beginning.

And woman's friendship? It is more easily won.

You can't buy the real thing with gifts or win it with flattery. The harder you try, the less she cares.

But she has a tender heart. Pretend that you have offended her and then approach with a broken and contrite heart to beg forgiveness.

The world has seen few women who could resist humility and contrition in a strong man.

Americanism: Bring just enough to hold your job; wondering how those lucky stiff got rich.

If she feels abused and pouts habitually, you may assume that he gets his own breakfast.

Correct this sentence: "It never irritates either of the parents to see the other punish the child."

doubt receive some setbacks. Our New England climate will probably be true to its reputation, but there is every indication that the season will be early.

Handshaking.
Everything is done to relieve a President of the United States except that all the people of the country expect him to shake them by the hands. In the good, old hearty way, established when there were only a few millions of people, and now there are 120,000,000, observes the Noblesville (Ind.) Ledger. All the people of the country get to the White House at some time in their lives, and so President Coolidge, just now, is nursing a sore hand and arm. No man can stand the strain of shaking hands with all Americans who may manage to get to the White House; in fact, shaking hands is a habit that may well be broken. At least, let Silent Cal have the privilege of using his left hand, as well as the right, or even slapping the people on the back, if any one can imagine him doing that.

Good Example.
New York Evening Post: Sweden and Belgium sign an agreement never to go to war upon each other. Can not this example, set in the featherweight class, be emulated by the heavyweights?

Full of Indignation.
Detroit Free Press: Another new and interesting sight which we may all see soon is Irate W. Citizen pounding the coin box in a telephone booth, trying to get back $27 which he inserted for his call to London—and then didn't get his party.

Mobs and Lynching.
Rudson Star: Presumably the lynching mob is actuated by the fear that their intended victim will somehow escape punishment for his offense if permitted to take his chances before a jury and the bench. This fear, coupled with the desire for vengeance, emboldens the mob to that point where it takes upon itself the right to condemn a convict, determine the degree of punishment and impose the penalty. When brought to justice, the lyncher will complain the wheels of justice grind too slowly and will pretend he acted according to his sense of justice and honor. Should those interested with the execution of the law object in the

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Open Door in China.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It looks as if China has been won over to the "open door" policy. At least she is willing to open the door for the departure of intruding foreigners. China has too long submitted to foreign domination. Just now the war is between themselves, but when the war ends, as end it will, a new China will be on the map of the world, a China of power, taking its place among the great nations.
L. R. B.

Mistrusts the Chinese.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Although not claiming to be wise to the Chinese situation—and who is for that matter?—yet it is hard for me to agree with all of your editorial of this morning, "Caught Between Two Armies." You seem to feel that the commanders at Nanking, failing to obtain assurance from the Chinese authorities, might have been unduly excited with their threat of bombardment. But, who are the Chinese authorities? The present tendency toward mob rule (in China and elsewhere) makes the question of "authority" rather confusing. And in China, especially, can we be sure that the ancient tendency toward "ways that are dark and tricks that are vain" has wholly disappeared from the Chinese psychology?

The first duty of government under international law is to protect its citizens, wherever they may be. Perhaps Americans in China have been warned to leave, but people are not always prepared to leave the locality wherein their interests happen to lie, or maybe they just took chances. But the point is, they are there, is it not? And our commanders have been sent there to protect them. Perhaps this Chinese Gen. Chin-and-So-Forth may be able to do the protecting, and maybe he can not, and maybe he doesn't want to. Real bad. Who knows? Anyway, hurrah for the admiral who threatened to blow up that Chinese Gen. Chin-and-So-Forth who takes his orders from Moscow.
HINDA BURKE.

Radio Suggestions.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I beg you to present the following suggestions to the radio commission through your columns. I think they are new and I hope they are valuable, as their adoption will avoid either broadening wave lengths or refusing to license stations:

1. Give the hours between 5 and 10 or 11 p. m. to those stations which give uniformly fine programs and can operate under such conditions as to prevent interfering with one another; then give night or day time hours to all other stations. To illustrate: Don't let a station sending the bang-bang noise dubbed "modern dance music" come crashing into our ears when we are looking for real music, but limit that to the late hours affected by dancers. Make the poor performers and the gross advertising take only to spare and will in the day hours accept anything rather than nothing.

2. Make any station broadcasting the same program as a key-station, on certain evening hours of certain days, use the same wave length as the key-station at those times. Thus, instead of a large chain almost filling the radio scale with a single program, wave lengths will be released at specified times for stations not usually heard in the evening. For success of this plan the chain-wave lengths must be far enough apart to prevent interference in even poor receiving sets.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU
121 N. Patrick St., Alexandria, Va.

The controversy over settlement of the estate of Miss Margaret V. Smith, which has been in progress for several months, was settled yesterday by agreement with the admission to probate in the circuit court of a will dated October 10, 1925, as the last will and testament. Under the terms of the will, the estate is divided equally between Dr. M. D. Delaney and Courtland H. Smith, a nephew. The estate is valued at approximately $50,000, including $30,000 in stocks and bonds, the home at 510 Wolfe street, and a half-acre of land in the northwest section of the city.

A will in the handwriting of Miss Smith, dated November 10, 1925, left the entire estate, with the exception of a few minor bequests, to Dr. Delaney. This was contested by Mr. Smith and a bill of complaint filed charging undue influence and that the mind of Miss Smith was impaired at the time of this will.

While terms of the settlement have not been made public, it is understood a satisfactory adjustment was reached. Several wills had been offered for probate and the beneficiaries named were Dr. Delaney, Courtland H. Smith, his wife and children; Mrs. Jordan, a grandniece of Miss Smith; her cousin, Thomas R. Keith of Fairfax; the Virginia Military Institute, the Presbyterian cemetery of Alexandria, the Rev. Dr. P. P. Phillips, former rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church; Representative R. Walton Moore, George E. Warfield, Mrs. Anne H. Moore, Julia Monroe, a servant, and Charles Holland, an orderly at the Alexandria hospital. Moore and Warfield, it is understood, have renounced any provision in their favor.

A decree also was entered by the court dismissing the equity suit filed by Mr. Smith against Dr. Delaney to have set aside certain deeds to real estate conveyed to Dr. Delaney by Miss Smith before her death, and also certain gifts to him of personal property, on the ground that they were received while Miss Smith's intellect was impaired, and by reason of fraud and undue influence alleged to have been exercised by Dr. Delaney. The suit was dismissed by agreement of counsel for Dr. Delaney and Mr. Smith, and no further attack is to be made upon the validity of the deeds to the properties conveyed to Dr. Delaney.

Dr. Delaney, in his answer to the bill, denied he had received any personal property of great value; that the articles presented to him had been appraised at $150, that he never had received stocks or bonds from Miss Smith and that the only money she ever had given him for professional services was $105 in August, 1916. Dr. Delaney contended the properties conveyed to him were in the nature of payment for professional services over a period of ten years and that their value at the time of conveyance was $8,804.

The warrant charging Mrs. Cora Kelly, teacher in the Jefferson school, with assault and violation of a city ordinance in administering a whipping to Edward Taylor, 11 years old, a pupil, was dismissed yesterday by Justice W. S. Snow. Mrs. Kelly was represented by former Judge Robinson Moncure, and the State by Commonwealth's Attorney William P. Woods.

Justice Snow upheld the right of a teacher to punish pupils for infractions, with the limitation that any punishment must be given temperately and be measured by the gravity of the offense. The opinion states that, from all the evidence, the punishment inflicted was apparently more severe than was necessary, but not sufficiently severe to merit a charge such as was made in the warrant, no permanent injury to the boy having resulted.

City records indicate approximately 700 automobile owners have failed to pay their city license fees, while the fee has been received from approximately 2,300. A crusade against delinquents will be started today and the city manager said the work of bringing them into police court will continue daily until the list is cleared. The license tax was due June 1, 1926.

Donald Draper, of 103 South Fayette street, was fined $50 and costs in police court yesterday on a charge of illegal use of city gas. The arrest was made by Policeman James Bayless, on complaint of City Collector Purvis Taylor.

A joint meeting of the board of directors and the trustees of the Alexandria hospital will be held in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon.

Mrs. George M. Reynolds was injured yesterday when she slipped and fell on a new sidewalk at Glendale station. She was treated for bruises by Dr. M. D. Delaney.

Lieut. Edward J. Trumble, of Alexandria, was among the marine officers who left Quantico yesterday for China.

The body of Miss Martha Cora, former resident, who died Monday in Westfield, Mass., will be brought here tomorrow, and taken to Wheatley's chapel, pending funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Laura Krause, widow of Julius Krause, died Monday night at her home, 117 South Payne street. The funeral will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the home. The Rev. Edgar Carpenter will conduct the services and burial will be in Bethel cemetery.

Jay Gould Executors Must Repay Losses

Newark, N. J., March 29 (By A. P.).—The estate of George J. Gould will be required to contribute one-fourth of losses of $70,000,000 to the estate of Jay Gould by agreement reached by lawyers today. Ten years' controversy is believed ended under the agreement. It involves payment of similar amounts of $17,500,000 on the part of the three other executors of the estate of Jay Gould.

Negligence on the part of George J. Gould is the attributed cause of the losses.

FINDS MILL VILLAGES DEVOUTLY RELIGIOUS

Editor Denies Bishop's Assertion That Communities
Present Problem.

Charlotte, N. C., March 29 (By A. P.).—Statement by prominent Southern churchmen characterizing mill villages as one of the problems of industry in the South drew a reply today from David Clark, editor of the Southern Textile Bulletin. The statement, signed by Bishop James Cannon, of the Southern Methodist Church, and 40 other bishops and ministers, was issued recently at Washington.

"Employees who live in mill villages are devoutly religious," Mr. Clark declared in a statement today. "They come from the mountain stock largely and carry their religious beliefs with them. There is a greater percentage of church attendance in one of these communities than in the city or town as a whole. Mr. Clark said mill owners would like to abolish the mill village for economic reasons. 'There is less crime in the mill-owned villages,' he added, 'than when the employees live in their own homes and there is no business in the world where there is less class struggle than in the Southern cotton mill.'

Lowden, visited by a delegation from Iowa that left Des Moines yesterday to urge him to be a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, received them at his Mississippi farm here today. "There was a general discussion of the farm situation," the former governor said, "there was no special significance to the visit."

They expect to be gone three weeks. It is their hope that their trip will solidify the sentiment of the Filipino people and keep the economic resources of Moroland free from foreign exploitation.

RICHARDS TO PERMIT SUNDAY "GAS" SALES

Sabbath Golfers Also to Be Unmolested Pending High Court Ruling.

Columbia, S. C., March 29 (By A. P.).—Sales of gasoline and motor oils on Sunday throughout the State will not be interfered with by Gov. John G. Richards, pending a decision on the matter by the supreme court.

In making this announcement tonight, the executive said it was the intention of the attorney general to appeal to the supreme court from an injunction against Sunday gasoline sales in Charleston, issued last Saturday by Circuit Judge William H. Grimball, if the restraining order was made permanent by the judge.

The governor added the wish that all citizens continue to observe the provisions of the blue Sabbath observance laws recently revived in the absence of compulsion on certain of its phases. Pending a decision of the supreme court on the Sunday golf question after Circuit Judge Hayne F. Rice had continued an injunction protecting golfers on two Aiken links, the governor had ordered that no Sunday players be molested. He added in the golfing case, however, that notice would be taken of Sunday players and that they might be subject to later prosecution should the supreme court decide that the game was forbidden by the Sabbath law.

Dog Fund Will Aid School at La Plata

Special to The Washington Post.
Annapolis, March 29.—Final passage was effected in the Maryland general assembly tonight of two bills designed to rebuild the schoolhouse at La Plata, which was blown down with loss of life several months ago. Sponsored by Senator Mitchell, of Charles county, one measure authorizes the transfer of $5,000 from the county dog fund, and another provides for the issuance of $30,000 bonds. Other funds are to be secured in the county. A third measure provides a $40,000 bond issue for the establishment of a water supply system at La Plata.

All three measures now go to the governor.

Canal Easily 'Bombed' By Airplanes at Night

Panama, March 29 (By A. P.).—The ease with which the Panama canal could be raided by air at night was demonstrated last night when ten airplanes successfully "evaded" land batteries and searchlights and approached within effective bombing distances of the canal locks on the Pacific side. Flares released by the planes indicated that they had been successful in outmaneuvering the searchlights.

During the exercise, which lasted two hours, four planes theoretically were shot down.

P.).—The Northwestern National Bank of Portland, on which a run was started yesterday, was taken over today by the United States National Bank and the First National Bank. The business of the Northwestern will be divided between the two absorbing banks, officials announced.

When officials of the three banks emerged this morning from an all-night conference, they pushed their way through a crowd of men and women who had gathered at the Northwestern's doors since 6 o'clock this morning.

CROKER ESTATE SUIT RETRIAL IS ORDERED

Ruling of New York Court of Appeals Viewed as Victory for Widow.

ISSUE LONG DRAWN OUT

Albany, N. Y., March 29 (By A. P.).—Litigation over the estate of Richard Croker, Tammany chieftain, bitterly contested in many States in the last ten years, received fresh impetus today. A retrial was ordered by the court of appeals of a case involving $300,000 left by the first wife to her four children. The ruling of the court is generally regarded as a victory for Mrs. Beulah Edmondson Croker, widow of Richard Croker, for many years the chieftain of Tammany hall.

The first Mrs. Croker died in Europe in 1914, leaving a will directing that her estate, consisting of proceeds she had saved from a trust fund created by her husband, from whom she was estranged, be divided among her four children. The children were Richard, Jr., Howard and Florence Croker, and Ethel Croker White.

Soon after the death of his wife, Croker married Miss Beulah Edmondson, many years his junior, and of Indian blood. Richard Croker, Jr., alleged that there had been an agreement between his father and himself, by which Richard, Jr., would pay about $80,000 of the mother's estate to his brother Howard, on condition that the father pay a like amount to Howard and Ethel. Subsequently, in 1919, Richard, Jr., began an action against his father alleging that the latter had failed to perform his part of the contract and demanding that he be required to do so.

Richard Croker, sr., died before the matter was decided, and the New York Trust Co., as administrator of his estate, was named as defendant in the suit by Richard, Jr. The trust company declined to defend the suit and Mrs. Beulah Croker obtained an order permitting her, through her personal attorneys, to contest the action.

MAJ. SEGRAVE DRIVES RACE AUTO 207 MILES AN HOUR

the sensations of traveling 38.795 miles an hour faster than official records show man ever traveled before on land. There will be no more trials. Maj. Segrave said that he would start packing for the return to England this afternoon.

His sight seriously handicapped by the terrific wind velocity and speed which made his vision even with goggles nothing but a blur, Maj. Segrave revealed after the race that he had driven the course blind after reaching the high-speed ranges.

"That was one of my major worries," he said. "I could not tell where I was. One time I became entirely off the throttle and then realized I was still in middle of the course."

"Scared? There wasn't time," he said. "I had a job to do. I believe I could have gotten at 100 miles an hour more in a lesser wind, and I think I could have handled it. Even before the time was announced I knew I had gone very quickly, and I was almost sure I had done the job."

Aid to Engineering.

The race against time developed several valuable engineering facts, in the major's opinion.

"When the time comes that 200 miles an hour is the normal speed that 60 miles an hour is now, there must be a new sort of breaking system, a new steering rig and a different distribution of weight. With the present equipment there is virtually no control over a car traveling at that rate of speed. Or, at least, it answers so slowly as to make the controls all but worthless."

"In the big skid, where they tell me I hit the flagpoles, I'm sure I had the steering wheel locked right over for a long way before there was any answer at all. It looks to me now as though some sort of oil brakes would have to be developed for the high speed ranges. For the rest I have no definite ideas, except that they must control the car more fully than present equipment does."

At between a quarter and a half mile ahead of a car traveling 200 miles an hour, Maj. Segrave added, objects are outlined hardly, while closer they are merely a blur. He saw the three flag staves struck by the car only at the moment he struck them.

"But there is a lot bigger wallop in fast driving on the ground than there is in flying. Up in the air, you have the whole atmosphere in which to correct mistakes. Below, you're limited to one partial level and have obstructions to dodge."

"Certainly I'd be quite ready to do it all over again if the time were any necessity. I was preparing to go back at it this morning when we found the brakes gone. (One of his brake hands failed to stand the strain of vibration and intense heat from the stops after each record run and he called further trials off after the second race.) But this job is done now. There is no point in trying for your own record when nobody else is even close."

One of the first to congratulate Maj. Segrave after he was released by cheering throngs, who hoisted him to their shoulders after the race, was John D. Rockefeller, whose winter home is at Ormond Beach, near here. The capitalist watched the race from his automobile, with Gar Wood, Detroit sportsman, and K. Lee Guinness, a member of Maj. Segrave's party.

Mr. Rockefeller broke a precedent of years in seeking out Maj. Segrave to commend him for his achievement, and four of the famous Rockefeller dimes will accompany him back to England—one for himself, one for his wife, and one each for his mother and father.

Seeks Display in United States.

Maj. Segrave intends to leave here in about three days and plans to sail from New York on the Berengaria April 6. He said he was negotiating with American interests for a display of the Mystery 8 in this country, but said he would not consider motion picture and vaudeville contracts proffered him.

"I have work to do," he said. An American by birth, Maj. Segrave became a British subject at the outbreak of the world war, during which he was accredited as one of Great Britain's foremost air pilots.

Born in Baltimore in 1896, he was taken to England when 4 years old and educated at Eton and Sandhurst. His father is a British newspaper man of Irish birth, and his mother is an American.

His next racing engagement is the Hartford cup, 300-mile event, April 27, near Mansfield, France, in which he will drive a 91-cubic-inch piston displacement car. The Mystery 8 runs about 2,850 cubic inches displacement.

Official Summaries.

Maj. Segrave's official speed as announced this afternoon by the American Automobile association follows:

North run: Kilometer: 11.2 seconds; 199.7259 miles per hour; 321.4285 kilometers per hour.
Mile: 17.04 seconds; 200.668 miles per hour; 322.9364 kilometers per hour.

POLICEMAN BEATEN AND SHOT TO DEATH

Body of Lieutenant Is Found After Kidnaping; Investigators Blame Bootleggers.

Philadelphia, March 29 (By A. P.).—His skull badly battered and with four bullet wounds in his head, Lieut. Elwood Gainer of the Lancaster, Pa., police department, was found dead today on the Hook road, near Sharon hill, Delaware county.

Developments indicated, the authorities said, that Gainer had been kidnaped in Lancaster. All-day investigation failed to reveal a motive for the killing, but some of those working on the case were inclined to the belief that bootleggers were responsible.

Clad in police uniform but without pistol or blackjack, the body was lying face downward, one arm flung outward and the other grasping the handle of a suitcase. In the suitcase were clothing, many cartridges of various sizes and outfits for cleaning a .22-caliber rifle and automatic pistols. This led the police to believe the bag was the property of Gainer's assailants.

How Record Compares.

New York, March 29 (By A. P.).—Maj. Segrave's record of 207.15 miles an hour at Daytona Beach today marked the nearest approach to the highest speed man has attained, 278 miles an hour in an airplane.

This air record was set by Florentin Bennett, of France, in December, 1924. The fastest mark by rail was that set by an engine in a 5-mile run from Fleming to Jacksonville, Fla., in 1901, in attaining an average of 120 miles an hour.

On the water Miss Detroit in 1920 at Lake George set record of 77.35 miles an hour for speed boats, while on the Solent, England, the Maple Leaf 3d made 80 miles per hour in 1921.

The record of the Cunard liner Mauretania is 27.04 knots, while that of the Leviathan is 28.04 knots.

Shrewd Reply Wins Boy Place as Page

Austin, Tex., March 29 (By A. P.).—Although only 10 years old, Henry J. Steen, house page in the Texas legislature, finds himself better known than many of the members he serves, all because of a "wise crack" that got him his job.

House committeemen examining page applicants twitted Henry about his short legs in preface to refusing him a place.

"Gentlemen, what this legislature needs is brains, not legs!" Henry came back.

That remark started what seems to be a career for Henry. He got the job and he also got a reputation. Everybody in the capitol and around Austin knows Henry now as the youngster who "got back" at the august members of the house. He is pointed out to visitors along with the capitol building, the youngest governor and other sights.

Man and Woman Rob Store; Flee Under Fire

St. Louis, March 29 (By A. P.).—Downtown St. Louis today witnessed an exciting chase of 2½ miles in which two robbers, a woman and a man, sped away from police, after exchanging about two dozen shots.

An attractive woman about 25 years' old walked into the clothing store of Joseph Singer and tried on an Easter cloak. Her companion, a man several years older, then drew a revolver and took $105 from Singer. The couple ran to a coupe and drove away. Police took up the chase. One of the robbers—the pursuers thought it was the woman—smashed the rear window in the coupe and shot at the police, who returned the fire.

The work will include the study of the general diagnostic and therapeutic use of the X-ray and other more powerful rays.

The donors are the general education board, the Rockefeller organization for the advancement of education, and Edward Mallinckrodt, St. Louis chemical manufacturer, and members of his family.

20 of the Bungalows Sold

We earnestly counsel those contemplating embracing this opportunity—that they act quickly.

Have you been disappointed over your hasty purchase made elsewhere? If so, here's your chance to redeem that mistake by ridding yourself of that investment at a discount and of using the proceeds to buy into this garden spot of the Severn River on a ground floor basis.

While the motive for offering this most unusual opportunity is to get a larger proportion of our rental Bungalows into the hands of enthusiastic owners, we will probably always have a goodly number of cottages available for renting to newcomers. These, along with those that are being sold, are, however, being rapidly booked up, indicating that applicants for accommodation may later be turned away.

Both golf courses are now open

For convenience of our members a de lux bus will be run between Sherwood Forest and Washington every morning and evening beginning June 15.

"False Love and True"

By CAROLINE BEECHER

SYNOPSIS.

Bob Livingston happily prepared for her coming-out party on her eighteenth birthday anniversary. On her birthday morning she found her maid Aunt Alice, who had brought her, dead.

Bob's aunt had lived well on an annuity, and Bob is surprised when she received from the estate in 1920, five years after her death, a large sum of money. She had not expected it, and she had not expected to find it in her home town.

Bob wanted to see the money, but she was not allowed to. She was told that the money was for her education, and she was to use it as she saw fit.

Bob's aunt had been a very good person, and she had been very kind to Bob. She had been a very good mother, and she had been a very good aunt. She had been a very good person, and she had been a very good aunt.

Someway things aunt had said, things I had long ago forgotten rushed through my mind: "Never make yourself cheap, Bob," and "A man never wants what he gains too easily."

Eight o'clock. Not by a look had he shown any surprise, any lessening of his interest.

"I shall be glad to see you," I demurely replied.

"How did you like Matt Waters?" Bob asked, looking at me.

"Very much."

"He's a good deal of an old fogey. I thought perhaps he'd bore you."

"No—he interested me. I'd get even for the heartache I had had even since hearing of Bob's popularity."

"You're a funny girl, Bob. Such a child at times. So old at other times. I wonder—"

"Aunt Alice made a companion of me. Perhaps that made me seem older. She was quite old."

"I won't have you old. I like you young," he laughed.

Bob was so nice to me I forgot to be jealous. He seemed so happy, so content, so sure of himself, so sure of his place in the world. He was so sure of himself, so sure of his place in the world.

"Thank you, say Wednesday evening."

THE pointer for today is: When Dumpty King and a small card of the suit led, and closed hand has no high card in that suit, play the King if the contract be No Trump.

Yesterday the following hands were given: North (Dumpty)—Sp: x-x-x; Ht: A-x-x-x; D: K-x; C: Q-9-x-x; South (Closed Hand)—Sp: A-K-J; Ht: Q-x-x; D: x-x-x; C: A-J-10-x. The following questions were asked. The contract is No Trump and West has led a small Diamond: (1) What should Dumpty play on trick one? (2) If Dumpty trick 1 with the King, what should he lead to trick two? (3) If Dumpty lead the Queen of Clubs to trick 2, and East play low, what should South play? (4) If Dumpty lead the Queen of Clubs to trick 2, and East play low, what should South play?

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES McDONALD

Breach of Promise.

MY Dear Miss McDonald:—I admire you very much. Your advice is sound and has personally helped me on several occasions. An opportunity has arisen now to tell you of my own problem—not exactly a problem, for there has already been a solution, but I do want your opinion of the man involved. I was engaged to be married this fall to a very wonderful boy, the only son of a very wealthy people. Everything went along smoothly until two weeks ago, when I received a letter (he lives in the middle West) to the effect that our engagement was broken. You can imagine my surprise when I received the letter. There was no explanation at all. Just that "matrimony between us was impossible." Naturally I wrote and asked for an explanation in fairness to myself. The answer came. There were three reasons for breaking the engagement: (1) Difference in religion; (2) Difference in age (I am five years his senior); (3) Difference in our ancestors—mine come from the southern part of Europe—"impulsive, temperamental, passionate," his from the north—"unresponsive, unsentimental and cold." The peculiar part of it all is the fact that he realized all of this when we first became engaged, ten months ago, but now he listened to the advice of his "dearest friend" and he could only see failure in such a union. I suppose the usual course would be to sue him for breach of promise, for I have letters in which he promised marriage. But I have some pride and, then, again, I

Conduct and Common Sense

By ANNE SINGLETON

THE BITER DOESN'T LIKE TO BE BIT.

DEAR Miss Singleton: I know a girl who would be quite lovable except for her dreadful way of ridiculing every one she meets or sees for one or another reason. Incidentally, this person is hypersensitive in the matter of all criticisms, earned or otherwise, made of herself. I know she reads your column, and I wish you would address an article especially to such as she, for her benefit. She needs it.

I will very gladly take up the cudgels for Maxwell, for I think the habit of wholesome ridicule is a very bad one. A sense of humor is a fine thing to have, because any one who has it can see a joke at his own expense, as well as at his neighbor's. The world can't quite "down" the man or woman with a sense of humor. But to develop one's powers of ridicule, always at another person's expense and perhaps at inopportune times, is a sign of both cruelty and weakness. The cruelty is in not caring how the ridicule may hurt or confuse its object. The weakness is in the underlying feeling of not being in that superior position which criticism—especially the kind that bites a little—gives one. If I split my sides, I don't love him, I'd get even for the heartache I had had even since hearing of Bob's popularity.

"You're a funny girl, Bob. Such a child at times. So old at other times. I wonder—"

"Aunt Alice made a companion of me. Perhaps that made me seem older. She was quite old."

"I won't have you old. I like you young," he laughed.

Bob was so nice to me I forgot to be jealous. He seemed so happy, so content, so sure of himself, so sure of his place in the world. He was so sure of himself, so sure of his place in the world.

BEAUTY AND YOU

By VIOLA PARIS

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

DEAR Viola Paris: Will you please tell me if there is anything I can use in a shampoo to make my hair brighter and keep it from getting oily? What can I do to make my eyelashes long and thick? I find that most eye blacking rubs off.

Answer—If you are a natural blonde, you might use a camomile rinse after washing the hair. This is made somewhat like tea, by steeping a small handful of camomile leaves in a quart of boiling water and using it after it has cooled sufficiently. This rinse, however, is only for blonde hair. I am not in favor of using bleach.

The night before the shampoo, you will find it helpful to apply olive oil to the scalp. It should be put on just as hot as can comfortably be borne. Then the head may be tied in a towel and the shampoo taken the next morning. Strangely enough, this treatment is good either for dry or for oily scalps. There are also special tonics that are good to correct oily hair. I can not give you the name of a commercial brand in this column, but you might try the following remedy:

1/2 ounce lime water.
Apply this preparation to the scalp every night, rubbing it in with the finger tips. In obstinate cases, one ounce of tincture of cantharides can be added to the original preparation, continuing the treatment in the same way.

To encourage eyelashes to grow, vaseline or sweet oil can be gently brushed into them at night. This, however, will not change their color. I do not know of anything that will make them darker except mascara or one of its equivalents. The best French mascara will not rub off easily. However, I do not recommend blackening the eyes for a young person, or, in fact, for any one, to any great extent, except at night. If the blackening looks at all obvious, it is certainly out of place during the day.

DEAR Viola Paris: Is it harmful for the hair to brush it three or four times a day with water? I have been doing this for a long time. My hair used to be perfectly straight, but now it is a little wavy. It is falling out very badly. STEADY LISTENER.

Answer—I do not think that any good preparation will affect a permanent wave under ordinary circumstances. Naturally, one must expect to care for a permanent wave in the same way as one would care for a straight wave. This can be done by combing the hair carefully and by setting the wave every day.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

FEW DOLLARS CAN BUY HEALTH FOR STATE.

TWO Alabama papers, the Montgomery Advertiser and the Birmingham News—are indulging in some boasting about improved health conditions in their State. In eight years the typhoid death rate was cut in half. In fact, the reduction was from 39.2 to 17, a cut to less than half. In the same time the pellagra death rate was cut to nearly one-third of the starting rate—46.8 to 16.8. Pellagra is a more important disease than typhoid in that State because it lasts longer, causing a longer period of disability. The cut in malaria was even greater, having been from 23.1 to 8.2. The decrease in fatal diphtheria in children under 2 was about the same as that of typhoid—68 to 31.5.

The venereal rate in the State has been materially decreased. Hookworm has been practically eliminated in most sections of the State and is being brought under control in some others. In about the same length of time the number of county health departments increased from 1 to 30. Alabama deserves all the credit given by these newspapers. In fact, and space permitted, a few additional items could have been inserted.

The method which they are using is improving their milk supply, and that which they use in several cities and towns is being distributed in several States. It goes by the name of the U. S. public health service standard method.

Facts as to malaria and hookworm worked out in Alabama are being made use of almost everywhere. As to hookworm, they have found this parasite unimportant except in regions where the soil is one of several types. They have found that mild hookworm infestation is about on par, so far as effects are concerned, with "worms."

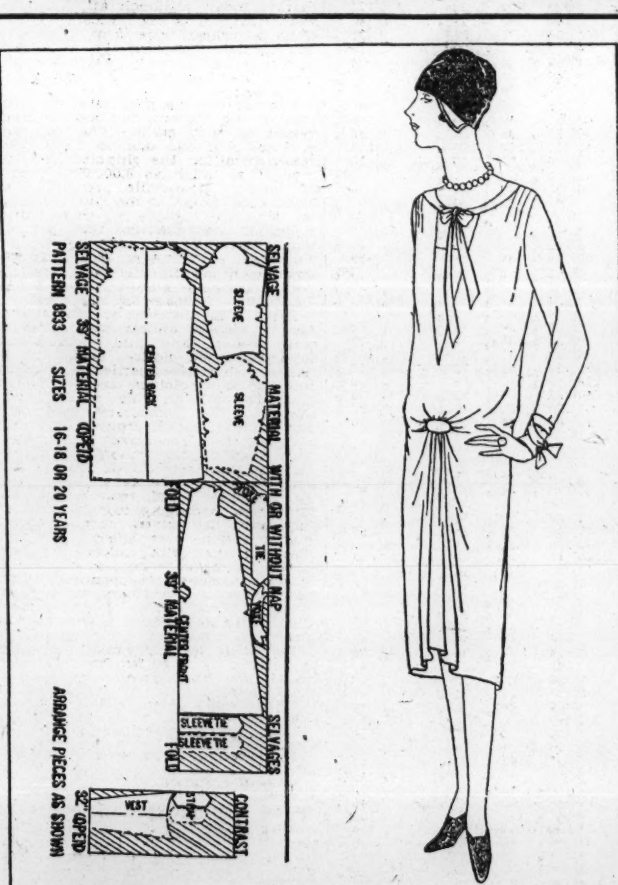

They have found that when a region is malarial it is because there are a few foci of infection in the region. Dollars spent in cleaning up a few neighborhoods will sometimes convert a highly malarial county into a healthy one.

I have in mind one Northern State that has a report on several malarial counties within that State. This report says that one county can be made malaria free by the expenditure of about a hundred dollars in poisoning a few pot holes in the course of one creek, using arsenic larvae for the purpose. The improvements bragged of so justly by the Advertiser and the News can be shown by many States where most of the population lives in the rural districts. So far as health improvement is concerned, the farmer is about to have his day, just as the city dweller has been having his for the last quarter of a century.

Rural typhoid is coming down as the typhoid carriers are being discovered. Pellagra seems to be getting ready to quit. Malaria should follow yellow fever away from this continent, and baby life is becoming safe in the country.

A Smart Dress, But Easy to Make

© VOGUE 5433

DEAR V-gue: Will you please help me plan a dress to wear to my daughter's wedding? There is so much work to be done on the dress that the seamstress won't have time to make anything very complicated, and yet I want very much to look well. I am the "average American type"—medium height, blue eyes, brown hair that is beginning to turn gray.

The dress that we have sketched is very simple in construction, as you see; the back and the front are each in one piece—and it should take your seamstress a very short time to cut it out and make it. Yet it is smart enough, by virtue of its up-in-front hem-line, its bloused waist, its interesting neckline, to make you distinguished as a bride's mother should be. The vest may be of contrasting material, or, if you wish to be very modern and very chic, you may prefer to wear no vest at all, and let the lace of your chemise take its place. And perhaps you could find an exquisite buckle to wear at your waist, which might be in metal or crystal, and can give the dress great distinction.

Since blue is so smart this year, and you are the "average American type," we should advise you to make it blue—preferably one of those lighter blues with a violet cast that goes by the name of queen blue this year and looks rather like the old periwinkle. You hat might be in blue, or in the same blue; your slippers, either patent leather or black suede.

FOSSIL TROPIC TREES IN WASHINGTON STATE

Spokane, Wash., March 29 (By A. P.). Fossil records of plants believed to have thrived a million years ago are read by T. A. Bonser, curator of the Eastern Washington historical museum of Spokane, as conveying proof that a tropical climate once prevailed in the Northwest.

Plants found only in tropical regions and in the Orient grew in abundance in this district, he holds, because of the hundreds of fossil leaves found in the rocks under ancient lava flows. These include figs of the Orient and the ginkgo or maiden hair fern tree of China and Japan. Fossils of eleven species of oaks have been uncovered whereas only one grows native in Washington now. Fossils of other trees include the bald cypress, stinking cedar, incense cedar, ancient silver poplar, sweet gum, elm, laurel, magnolia and persea, all of which are native of the South or East.

VETERAN IN NEBRASKA WAS MONITOR GUNNER

Ponca, Nebr., March 29 (By A. P.).—An 86-year-old member of the Union navy in the civil war believes himself the only survivor of the crew which piloted the Monitor to victory over the Confederate ironclad ram Merrimack in Hampton Roads 65 years ago.

He is James H. McKenzie, and he was a gunner on the ironclad "Chesapeake" when it was routed its sea-going foe.

McKenzie was just 21, fresh from Scotland and the British merchant marine when he was hired by a New York firm to serve for his son in the navy. He had shipped to America in an English vessel. When the war ended he was on the frigate which carried four conspirators against the life of Lincoln to prison in the Dry Tortugas.

Then he came West, and was a government butcher, a hunter and trapper for many years.

MODISH MITZI

Just before Mitzi and Eleanor go out to do a little shopping Mitzi looks over the contents of her wardrobe and remarks that nearly all of her spring dresses are trimmed with bows—quite as they should be. (Mitzi wears a skull cap and Eleanor's hat is trimmed with flowers.)

But speaking of bow trimming for dresses, it's just beginning to be noticeable that spring coats are also going in for this sort of trimming. The navy coat in the window, with its lines of horizontal tucking, has a tremendous bow of black taffeta on one shoulder.

Spring Coats Are Trimmed With Bows

This smart coat which Mitzi meets on the street is also navy blue and is trimmed with rows and rows of narrow crepe ribbon. Wider ribbon is used for a soft collar and for a bow on one shoulder. Mitzi begins to think she hasn't done the styles justice in her coats.

This wrap of crepe satin with both the dull and shiny sides used is practically a clinching argument in favor of bow trimming for coats, and it's highly probable that Mitzi will do a little intensive shopping—it's most proper to have one's coats and dresses match!

SELLING SETS IN AFTER NEW HIGHS ARE SCORED

Losses Outnumber Gains at Close; Rail Shares Hold Up Fairly Well.

SUGARS REMAIN STEADY

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, March 29.—Many leading stocks of the same class which soared upward yesterday continued their forward course for a time today, during which stock prices were trading witnessed many new high records, but the pace apparently was too rapid, and eventually was checked by a strong selling movement. Under this much of the early gain was lost, and at the close minus signs outranked plus marks. Nevertheless, there was no small number of net gains, these ranging up to 10 points in the case of American Locomotive.

Stocks which scored new high today included General Motors, Commercial Solvents, General Railway Signal, American Cables, American Sumatra Tobacco, Delaware and Hudson, A. M. Byers, Dupont, Hayes Wheel, Matheson Alkali, Remington Typewriter, Underwood Typewriter, United States Steel common (new), Woolworth and Vanadium.

The maintenance of the call money rate at 4 1/2 per cent and the comparative scarcity of funds at that figure seemed to be a factor in the market, and the early rally in stocks began to slow down when the rate was announced. The early buying by further reports of increased earnings for February over the same period last year. Later the bears led the growing seriousness of the Chinese situation, their principal ammunition. The market closed irregularly.

When the selling movement got fairly under way it appeared as if the carrier stocks were inclined to give ground more readily than the industrials. Atlantic Coast Line was especially soft, yielding for a net loss of 5 1/2 points. Most of the standard rails, however, after dropping back to their opening prices, found good support and held firmly. The steels acted about the same way, closing very close to their opening prices. The oils did not do as well.

Sugars were quite strong throughout the session, although not active. American Sugar gained a full point net, while South Porto Rican closed with a gain of 4 1/2 points.

General Motors soared to a new high at 138 1/2 in the early trading, then dropped back to close with a net gain of only a small fraction. Most of the other members of this group closed with moderate net losses after a show of early strength.

Baldwin Locomotive ended the day with a net gain of 5 1/2 points. Other strong spots included Westinghouse, Air Brake, Woolworth, Mid-State Petroleum, International Silver, International Harvester, American Red Reduction and Case Threshing.

Pressure on some of the oil shares was said to be a result of reported large production of crude petroleum in the Lima pool, south of the Seminole, where a great many new wells are expected to send up Oklahoma's output to record high figures at an early date.

In other directions technical conditions of the market were blamed for the ease with which the market gave ground. Many traders switched to the selling side on the belief that the market's position had been weakened by recent extensive buying and the expectation of a large part of the short account. Selling was heaviest in the final hour, when a large number of stocks softened.

Narrow trading prevailed in foreign exchanges. Sterling was steady. Spanish and Italian eased downward. The rate on Canada held firmly.

Norfolk & Western Railway Company

The Norfolk & Western railway operates 2,241 miles of road which extend westerly from Norfolk, Va., to Cincinnati and Columbus, Ohio. A northern branch extends to Hagerstown, Md. Since this road affords an easy tide-water outlet from the bituminous coal fields, soft coal constitutes about 75 per cent of the company's total tonnage. The principal coal subsidiary of the Norfolk & Western railway is the Pocahontas Coal & Coke Co., which owns or has interest in about 300,000 acres of coal lands in Virginia and West Virginia.

The road has highly improved properties and is efficiently operated. Recent reports show equipment to be in much better than standard condition, capitalization is conservative and earning power is excellent. In 1925, for instance, earnings were equivalent to $115.54 per share on the preferred stock and to $18.67 on the common stock and to $18.67 on the common stock. In 1926 per share earnings amounted to $160.08 on the common stock and to $25.71 on the common shares.

Dividend rates on the common shares are 8% per year and 10% per year.

Ripley to Sign As Hilltop Coach

Palace Basketball Star and Little to Agree, Is Indication.

Money Consideration Said to Be Acceptable to Veteran.

ELMER RIPLEY, veteran guard of the Washington basketball team of the American Professional league, will sign to coach basketball at Georgetown university, it was indicated last night after a conference between Ripley and Lou Little, director of athletics at Georgetown.

Georgetown has been casting about for a basketball coach, following the new athletic policy at the Hilltop which restricted Coach John D. O'Reilly's duties to track, and had broached the proposition to Ripley more than a month ago.

Ripley has had the offer under advisement for weeks and his conference with Little yesterday removed virtually every obstacle which would prevent his coaching the Georgetown team. The monetary consideration is now the only difference between Little and Ripley, and the latter said last night that in all probability the two would come to an agreement within the next few days.

Should Ripley sign as coach of Georgetown it is likely that he will tutor the team under the same arrangement that Nat Holman, star of the Celtics, coaches the City college of New York quintet—that is, he would be at Georgetown only when not traveling with the Palace club on its schedule journeys.

The professional style of game which Ripley believes is the acme of court perfection doubtless would be in vogue at Georgetown under Ripley's reign. The latter is a basketball veteran of more than 22 seasons, who has played as a professional from coast to coast and is recognized as one of the master minds of the game. Georgetown immediately dropped further negotiations when advised that Ripley was open to an offer.

Ripley was recipient of an offer from Yale to coach basketball at the New England institute, but he indicated he would decline in favor of Georgetown.

Paulino's Foe Claims Titles of 3 Countries

Special To The Washington Post.

New York, March 29.—Tom Heeney, the big New Zealander who hopes to advance in the heavyweight tournament at the expense of Paulino Uzcudun whom he meets for ten rounds or less at the New Garden on Friday night, is champion of Ireland on the strength of a victory over Bartley Madden, the title of Australia by his win over George Cook and the exclusive rights to the championship of New Zealand by right of heritage. Paulino, on the other hand, is merely the champion of the Basque, which makes him Mr. Heeney's social inferior. The semifinal of Friday night's Garden card brings together Pat McCarthy of the Back Bay Boston McCarthy's, and Matt Adgie, an ex-ice peddler from Philadelphia.

OLD LINE NINE WINS, 7 TO 6, IN NINTH

Snyder's Hit, 2 Out, Decides Game With Springfield.

A LONG drive to right by Wilbert Snyder with two out in the ninth inning that scored Kessler from first base gave University of Maryland a 7-6 victory over Springfield college in Byrd stadium at College Park yesterday afternoon.

Maryland entered the last inning trailing 4 to 6. After Coakley, the first batter had died on a line drive to Craig, Beachley doubled to left center but was out trying to stretch it to a triple. Stevens, however, singled and after Murray had walked Deeds for some reason uncorked a heave to the unguarded second sack and when the ball continued to the outfield Stevens raced home and Murray continued to third. Stevens counted on Kessler's line single to right center and then scored on Snyder's drive.

The Old Line played an uphill game all the way and Springfield led 4 to 6 in the fourth and fifth innings were over before they were able to score. Maryland's first run came in the fifth on singles by Burdette and Campbell and walk to Beachley. Singles by Bromley and Campbell, passes to Beachley and Stevens, an error by Mahan and a fielder's choice produced three more Maryland markers in the seventh.

It was the steady pitching of Luke Bromley, diminutive left hander, that was largely responsible for the home club's victory. Entering the fourth inning with Springfield ahead, 5 to 0, Bromley immediately checked the Massachusetts collegians and would not have been scored on for the remainder of the game except for his own error.

England got by the first inning unscathed, although the bases were full at one time. Springfield counted three runs in the second, however, without a hit. The visitors got a pair of safeties in the third which, combined with two errors, a walk and a sacrifice, netted two more runs. In the fourth inning the New Englanders got their last run on a single, error and an infield out.

Mostil's Loss Chief-Worry Of Schalk

Outfield "Shot," Says White Sox Manager; Boone to Play.

Pitching Talent Plentiful; Ward and Peck in Infield.

SHREVEPORT, La., March 29 (By A. H.).—Ray Schalk likes his job and his boss.
The new manager of the Chicago White Sox, promoted after sixteen years as the club's star catcher, has enjoyed his work so far and declares he is working for a "wonderful man," Charles A. Comiskey, the "Old Roman."
"We have a wonderful gang of fellows here," said Schalk. "They are all hustling, and I don't think you can keep a team, with spirit like this, down in the race. We are not claiming any pennant, but I expect to see our club in the first division."

"We will have the pitching. I think we have as good pitchers as any club in baseball, and after all, in the last analysis, the pitching tells the tale."

We seem about to pick up two dependable left-handers in the new crop, Bert Cole, who is no novice, and Barnabe, a youngster. "Red" Faber is taking his time getting in shape, but he will be ready. He will give a good account of himself when he has his rest.

Wardie (Aaron Ward) and Peck (Roger Peckinpaugh) look all right to me. I think they will give us a jam-up combination at second base and shortstop. And in Hunsfield we have a wonderful young infielder.

The outfield, of course, is "shot" by the removal of Mostil from consideration at this time. We are fortunate in having been able to add two such good men to the outfield group as Ike Boone and Moore.

"As it shapes up now, it looks like Pat, Barrett and Boone to start in the outfield, with Moore in reserve. We will get a fifth outfielder by the time the season opens, I think."

Tilden and Lott Enter Atlanta Semifinals

Augusta, Ga., March 29 (By A. P.).—The probability of another championship meeting between William T. Tilden and George Lott, University of Chicago, who defeated America's ranking tennis player last week in Florida was seen today as both emerged into the semifinals of the South Atlantic tennis tournament here.

Tilden, although suffering from a knee injury, had no trouble in eliminating James A. Stoughton, New York, in love sets, 6-0, 6-0, and tomorrow will meet his young protegee, Sandy Warer, of Philadelphia, who entered the upper bracket of the semifinals by defeating Robert Crossland, Charlotte, 6-0, 6-4. Lott, who won his quarterfinals match today from Fred Bagge, New York, by default, plays Jack Mooney, of Atlanta, in the lower bracket of tomorrow's semifinals. Mooney won today from Bothwell Lee, Augusta, 6-1, 6-1.

Play in the women's singles will begin tomorrow.

WASHINGTON'S SLUGGING OUTFIELD RECRUITS

Dundee-Latzo Bout On June 3 Approved

New York, March 29 (By A. P.).—Humbert J. Pugazy today won his first skirmish with Tex Rickard in the renewed competition of the rival promoters for major outdoor pugilistic attractions when the State athletic commission approved a world's welterweight title fight between Pete Latzo, champion, and Joe Dundee of Baltimore.

Unexpected withdrawal of opposition to the match by Rickard was followed by a postponement of the contest from May 24 to June 3. It will be held at the Polo Grounds by Pugazy fifteen days after Rickard's heavyweight elimination fight between Jack Sharkey and Jim Malone, which also was approved today. A top price of $22 was fixed by the commission for the latter match.

Rickard yielded a prior claim on the services of Dundee, who had signed a blanket contract to box three times under the Madison Square Garden promoter's direction.

Promoter Suspended After "Battle Royal"

Chicago, March 29 (By A. P.).—Joe Coffey, Chicago boxing promoter, was suspended for 60 days and his license was revoked today by the Illinois athletic commission because he staged a "Battle Royal" between five negroes before an elite audience at the Hotel Sherman Saturday night.

Some of the audience described the affair in which the negroes, wearing large pillows for gloves, battled until only one could stand erect, as merely a ludicrous spectacle while others said the exhibition was "disgusting."

Coffey was suspended because he violated a section of the law prohibiting boxing on Sunday, the commission holding that the free-for-all took place early Sunday morning and not Saturday night, and because he violated a rule prohibiting more than two principals contesting in the ring at the same time.

It was over the Sunningdale course last year that he created a course record of 66-68—134 for 36 holes. British golfers were amazed over this performance.

In September last Jones was elected to membership in the Royal and Ancient club of St. Andrews Scotland.

Dyer Wild in Final Inning; Teams Play Errorless Game.

Special To The Washington Post.

TAMPA, Fla., March 29.—Emmett McCann, infielder, has been returned to the Columbus club of the American association, President Clark Griffith, of the Washington club, announced today. McCann, who had tonight to join the Columbus team of Savannah, Ga.

McCann was purchased by the Nationals of option from the Columbus club last fall. Washington recently obtained waivers on McCann, who was sought by the Brooklyn club in the deal which sent Mickey O'Neil to the Nats, but Brooklyn withdrew its offer for McCann when informed that $10,000 was due the Columbus team if the player were retained in the majors after May 1.

The departure of McCann leaves Bob Reeves, former Georgia Tech collegian, and "Stuffy" Snow as the only reserve infielders now with the Nationals. McCann had failed to display the "own expected of him and his hitting had been especially weak."

Catcher Mickey O'Neil, purchased from Brooklyn, joined the Washington club here this afternoon. Manager Harris is particularly pleased with O'Neil because of his experience.

He is 27 years old and has been playing professional ball since 1916, when he performed in the St. Louis Trolley league. Since then he has journeyed in the Western association, International and National leagues.

O'Neil was with the Boston Braves during the seasons of 1920-1925. He shifted to the Dodgers in a three-player trade in October, 1925. Last season he played in 75 games with the Robins and had a batting average of only .209. He batted at a .269 clip.

No averages are kept which show aggressiveness and pepper, however, and these are his long suits, according to Harris, who rates O'Neil as one of the leaders in his profession in these respects.

"He not only is a steady, reliable receiver," said Harris, in discussing his latest acquisition, "but keeps everyone on his toes during a game and has the happy faculty of being able to get the best out of the pitchers. I think we need a ten-strike in signing him."

The coming of O'Neil means the departure of John Berger in the near future, as there is not a chance of the Nats releasing Ruel or Tate, an. Pilot Harris plans to carry but three catchers.

Manager Harris has been seriously considering turning the management of his team over to Tris Speaker while it is touring on the way north and going direct to Washington himself at last.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.
TAMPA, Fla., March 29.—The Washington ball club was forced to win a game today. Ed Dyer, pinch-hitter for the St. Louis Cardinals in the ninth inning, with his team in the lead, 2 to 1, presented the Nationals with the contest by a 3-2 score. He walked two players, the second with the bases full, and forced over the winning run.

Washington's attack, which had been dormant since the first inning, flamed into action, however, in the final inning, and three hits played a part in scoring the two runs that won the game. Tris Speaker, in a pinch-hitting role, and Earl McNeely inserted helpful hits that paved the way for the Washington comeback.

With one out in the ninth, Bluege beat out a bunt. Cullop, pinch-hitting for Reeves, fanned, but Speaker, who occupied the same role for Berger, sent Bluege to third with a clean single. Manager Harris let Pitcher Hadley bat for himself, and the big hurler rewarded the confidence placed in him by drawing a pass, which filled the bases. McNeely singled off Bell's glove, scoring the tying run, and Dyer chalked up defeat for himself by passing Stewart with the bases filled to force in the decisive run.

Garland Braxton and Irving Hadley did the Nat hurling and off their shoots the Cards enjoyed but one good inning, nicking Hadley for two hits and a walk, scoring their only two runs in the seventh. Arthur Reinhart, after hurling six frames, gave way to Dyer, another southpaw, and it was after he had pitched two good innings that the Nats staged their winning rally.

The Cards obtained but five hits, O'Farrell getting two of these. Ten safeties fell to the lot of the Harris-men, with McNeely and Stewart being credited with two each. There was only one unusual fielding play, Prich rushing back of first in the eighth to scoop up Tucker's hard hit grounder and rob Ollie of a hit.

For six innings, it was a great pitching duel between Braxton and Reinhart, with the former having the edge. During his stay on the hill, he granted but three scattered hits, one scratch, fanned three, and never was in trouble. The Nats nicked Reinhart for but six hits from which they were able to mold one run. This was coined in the opening inning on Stewart's single, and the respective teams, starting the seventh, and what 21 Cards were unable to do off Braxton's offerings was done by two of Hadley's.

With one out in the seventh, Lester Bell coaxed a walk and
